8 Names Among Billions, Congress and 9,000 Bills, Silk From Seaweed, A Fool When He Had It.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

INDIVIDUALS ARE still important, even in this age of complicated machinery and finance. Nearly two thousand million human beings are alive on earth, and practically all of them that know anything would agree on the names of a dozen men more important to the world than any other 100,000,000. The dozen would include:

PRESIDENT HOOVER, with more power than any constitutional monarch; he has the responsibility for America's situation.

MUSSOLINI, who established stable government when the alternative was chaos. He has succeeded marvelously in dealing with the impossible.

LAVAL, head of the French government that is now, as a distinguished British publicist puts it, "on the top of the world." He pushed the British empire off the gold standard, and might do the same for this country, except that we are too heavy for easy pushing.

HINDENBURG, the noble old German, who has kept faith with his people and held Germany together.

GANDHI, a strangely sincere, determined little creature, at this moment jailed by the British, dreaming of freedom for 300,000,000 not ready for it. He represents spirit against force. And the world is not ready for that.

MACDONALD, with the 10,000 worries of the British empire on his shoulders, a splendid Scotchman, absolutely honest, unselfish man.

STALIN, whose power in Russia is greater than that of any of the czars, because he works always, and educates those that he rules, instead of pressing them down into superstition.

Our high finance belittles him, conveniently overlooking the fact that there are no men idle in Russia, and 7,000,000 idle in the United States.

PASHA KEMAL, who has taken over the power of the sultans, as Stalin has taken that of the czars, and Mussolini that of the Roman emperor.

CONGRESS IS in session, with 9,000 bills before it, and the number growing rapidly.

A feeble Democratic majority in one house, a feeble Republican majority in the other, give the American people cause to pray for divine guidance and harmony.

It is probable, unfortunately, that the bill that is needed, if such a bill is conceivable, is not included among the 9,000.

THE DEMOCRATS want a "world parley" on the tariff. The greater part of the world is increasing its tariffs, and the maximum of futility has been shown to be "a world parley."

We should have a tariff made for the United States without consulting anybody, planned as intelligently as possible, to protect workers, manufacturers and businessmen IN THE UNITED STATES.

DEMOCRATS OUTLINE their tax plans, which include a limitation on the capital losses tax. There could not be a just limitation on losses without a similar limitation on capital profits.

The government has lost several hundred millions this year through "capital losses," which means selling stocks at a loss and charging the loss against the income tax.

The sensible thing would be to abolish the capital gains tax entirely. It works against the government. Men do not sell and report when they win. They do sell when they lose and report losses.

Mr. Mellon and President Hoover will have an unpleasant surprise in the part played by capital losses in 1931 income tax collections.

AN IRISH scientist extracts a marvelously fine imitation of silk from the seaweed "kelp." That weed yields a large part of the world's iodine and will now appear on young ladies' legs as "sheer stockings."

Nobody knows what wealth the ocean contains and will yield.

There is in it, for instance, a thousand times as much gold as the world's present total supply. Some scientists may find a way to extract that from the rushing waters of the world's highest tides in Newfoundland, England, China.

In ages to come the ocean will be "farmed," as the land is farmed now.

ONLY A LITTLE while ago Walter E. Pruzan was worth $5,000,000. Important real estate operator, head of a manufacturing corporation, money came easy. Recently he lost everything, yesterday he killed himself, leaving this message:

"I was a fool when I had money."

Many that still have money are fools, but they will not take warning.

AN UNPLEASANT international incident is the attack by three Japanese soldiers on Culver B. Chamberlain, United States Vice Consul. The attack was made upon him as he rode in an automobile on which the United States was plainly marked with the arms of the consulate general.

JAPAN CANNOT be held morally responsible for the act of three soldiers, inflated perhaps by Japan's easy victory over the unresisting Chinese. There will be considerable interest, however, in Japan's attitude.

Indictments by Schooley Jury Today Forecast

INDICTMENTS FORECAST TODAY

BULLETIN.

Insistence by grand jurors that names be included in the presentment for the reputed purpose of revealing practices in the city treasurer's office which while questionable might not be indictable, was reported to be holding up the Schooley quiz presentment, late today. One of the auditors of the treasurer's books was called shortly before 3 p. m.

A presentment will be returned by the grand jury late today in the investigation of the official acts of Roy D. Schooley, deposed City Treasurer, District Attorney A. T. Park announced.

After a two-hour session this morning, at which the presentment is believed to have been considered, the jury recessed until 2 p. m.

CONFERS WITH MURREN

Prosecutor Park conferred with Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren immediately after the session, presumably seeking a more intensive hunt for Assemblyman Samuel J. Grenet, whom county detectives have been unable to find in a three-day search.

Asked if Grenet would be haled before the grand jury at this late hour Park replied:

"Yes, we will hear Grenet if we can find him."

Murren said he had his men "scattered all over town" in an effort to find the missing legislator who is wanted to testify regarding reputed transactions of politicians in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

HINTS AT NEW PROBE

Park asserted that no new subpenas were being issued today.

Possibility of a supplemental probe to embrace phases not included in the present investigation is believed under consideration by the District Attorney and his aides.

Some members of the grand jury are reported to have favored indictments other than those which it is understood will be recommended in today's presentment.

U. S. Withholds Acceptance of Japan's Apology

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The American government today withheld formal acceptance of Japan's apology for the attack on American Consul Culver B. Chamberlain.

Ambassador Debuchi, of Japan, expressed to Secretary Stimson, on instruction of his government, Japan's "sincere regrets" over the incident, but Secretary Stimson informed the ambassador he would communicate with him further when reports of the incident are received.

He expressed gratification to the ambassador for having acted so promptly, but said when further reports were received he would again talk with him.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis and scores of other leaders in public life congratulated the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph last night on its dedicatory program for WCAE and wished both enterprises the peak of success.

Dedication of WCAE as "The Voice of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph" surpassed in grandeur and showmanship anything ever attempted in this city and left an indelible impression on the minds of listeners. The show "clicked" beautifully for three solid hours.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer served valiantly as master of ceremonies. His spontaneous remarks were both witty and appropriate.

COX JOBLESS ARMY MAKES JOHNSTOWN

Ranks Grow to 20,000 Over Mountains; Seek Trains For 'Army' Left Behind

Father James R. Cox's army of unemployed, carrying a plea for immediate relief measures to President Hoover and Congress, reached Johnstown at noon today, with its ranks swollen to nearly 20,000 men by delegations which joined it en route.

Mayor Eddie McCloskey, former prize fighter and in office but two days, rode a police motorcycle to welcome the procession, which left Pittsburgh shortly after dawn, traveling partly by autos and partly afoot.

More than 45,000 persons, according to Father Cox's estimate, jammed the streets immediately adjoining his church, Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic, as the "march" started.

In Johnstown, the job-crusading priest was informed, in a telegram sent by Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, that 20,000 men who wished to join the trek had been left behind when they found the 600 trucks and autos in the line already filled.

Ellenbogen said an attempt would be made to raise money enough to send all of the 20,000 to Washington by train.

The marchers and their sympathizers started pouring into the streets surrounding Father

MASSILON, O., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Mayor Jacob S. Coxey, who led a march of his own 38 years ago, has given his approval of another trek of unemployed to Washington.

Encouragement was asked of "Gen." Coxey yesterday by the Rev. James R. Cox, Pittsburgh priest, whose march to the capital began today.

Health of Briand Good, 'For His Age'

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The French Foreign Office told the Associated Press today that the health of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand was "good for a man of his age." He is 69.

This statement followed reports circulated in diplomatic circles to the effect that Briand had suffered a paralytic stroke and rumors from other sources that he was dead.

PAYROLL TAKEN DOWNTOWN

Forced to enter an automobile near the entrance of the County Jail in Ross street shortly after noon, P. H. Frauenheim, 28, of 150 St. Joseph street, reported to city detectives that two robbers took a $552 payroll and ordered him from the car on the Liberty Bridge.

Fraunheim, employed as a paymaster for the Standard Auto-Tite Joints Company, 916 Forbes street, and son of the firm's vice-president, A. M. Frauenheim, said he had left the Mellon National Bank and, contrary to his usual practice of driving to the plant, was walking. The automobile drew to the curb in Ross street while a man accosted him on the sidewalk with the comment:

Ordered to turn over the money while the car was proceeding toward the Liberty Tubes, Frauenheim said as the machine reached the center of the bridge he was put out. He could not give a good description of the pair, detectives said, and did not know whether the men were armed. Frauenheim said he failed to get the bandit's car license.

Recorder Foster Divorced in Reno

Mrs. Helen B. Foster was granted a divorce from Samuel D. Foster, Recorder of Deeds of Allegheny County, in Reno yesterday, after a hearing behind closed doors.

The Fosters were married in Philadelphia January 25, 1915, and have two children.

2 Boys Confess Cremating Man, Seven Children

GALLIPOLIS, O., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Sheriff Charles Swanson announced today that two inmates of the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster confessed they made a funeral pyre last spring out of a Gallia County log cabin, burning eight persons to death.

Revenge was the motive, Swanson said, adding that the boys confessed because of stricken consciences.

The boys were Alber Reymer, of Gallipolis, and Elsworth Mowyer, of Bucyrus. The cabin was occupied by James White, 40. He and seven of his children died in the flames.

Before setting fire to the cabin, the youth said, they nailed up the doors and windows so there would be no escape for the victims.

Chief Held for Trial In False Fire Alarm

Fire Chief John Haslett, of Tarentum, was ordered held for court on a misdemeanor charge following his arrest by Police Chief William Kelly after he was alleged to have turned in a false alarm on New Year's Eve while celebrating. Three firemen were injured and damage estimated at $8,000 was done to the two fire trucks that answered the alarm when they collided at Second avenue and Lock street, Tarentum.

POLICE REJECT 7-DAY WEEK

Police overwhelmingly defeated the suggested plan of working seven days for six days' pay in order to restore 162 men to work as a vote of 747 against and 80 in favor was announced today.

The Fraternal Order of Police members voted last night. A conference was to be held today between Director James M. Clark and organization heads to formulate new plans. A general wage cut of 10 per cent was expected to be discussed.

John Heinz was elected president of the Firemen's Protective Association last night for the eighth consecutive term. In a spirited fight, which firemen said was an effort to oust Heinz and bring the organization under machine dictation, Heinz won with 601 to 262 for Harry McKeown.

Jailors said that the mother wept bitterly but that her tears were as much relief from nervous tension as from grief.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Jennings and Harry Young, Missouri slayers of six officers, accepted their mother's advice and shot themselves here today rather than submit to capture by officers who surrounded their place of refuge.

Jennings Young was dead when officers broke into the house in the Houston East End and Harry, his younger brother, with two bullet wounds died a short time later in a hospital.

Both probably had been wounded in gun fight with the officers before they turned their weapons on themselves.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Illuminating gas escaping from a broken main at Dickson City early today rendered 15 persons, including Burgess Paul Motts, unconscious and all would have undoubtedly been asphyxiated had not a policeman on the beat discovered the break when he did.

Volstead Refuses to Testify At Beer Hearing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The author of the prohibition enforcement act—Andrew J. Volstead, of Minnesota—was invited today by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, to appear before the Senate Manufactures Committee this week on the hearings on his beer bill.

Senator Bingham wrote the former representative:

"You will recall you told the House Rules Committee on June 10, 1921, that wine 'might contain one or two or possible three per cent without being intoxicating.' You later edited your testimony to read 'considerably more' instead of the specific percentage.

"I write to ask your assistance in securing enactment of a bill, permitting the manufacture of malt and fruit juice beverages, having an alcoholic content in excess of ½ of 1 per cent, but not in excess of the Eighteenth Amendment's prohibition of intoxicating beverages."

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan 5.—(AP.)—Andrew J. Volstead, prohibition enforcement act author, today said he would not testify at a Washington hearing on a beer bill unless summoned by subpena.

Missing Pitt Instructor Reported Back Home

While police were engaged in a state-wide search for him, Charles Lithgow, 36, of 3347 Terrace street, physics instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, was reported to have returned home today.

The hunt began with a report to Missing Persons Bureau by John Lithgow, of 3607 Dawson street, a brother, that the Pitt faculty member had not been seen since the night of January 1 when he cashed a $5 check in an Oakland drug store and that his wife was ill over anxiety.

John Lithgow telephoned the bureau this afternoon that his brother had returned, but gave no details.

Dr. A. G. Worthing, head of the physics department at the university, said he had heard from Lithgow Sunday night. At that time he said he would not report for classes Monday. Dr. Worthing said. The latter asserted he expected Lithgow to report to him possibly late today.

Lithgow is a World War casualty, university authorities said, and receives compensation from the government.

GANDHI FOLLOWERS RESUME BOYCOTT, SCORES ARRESTED

BRITAIN FIGHTS BACK WITH 60 RAIDS

Government Places Ban on 45 Congress Bodies and Also Arrests Leaders

International News Service.

BOMBAY, Jan. 5.—The "war council" of the Indian Nationalist Congress swung into action today and ordered the followers of imprisoned Mahatma Gandhi to picket all the principal British shops in Bombay.

The government soon afterward struck a counter blow by outlawing 45 Congress bodies in Calcutta and raiding 60 offices of the Indian leaders, arresting scores.

The swift succession of events in which both sides were striking fast in India's drive for independence from Britain, foreshadowed further raids throughout the country similar to those of yesterday, in which three were killed and scores wounded.

TROOPS ON MARCH

POONA, India, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A battalion of the King's own Scottish Borderers, well-known British regiment, will leave here tonight for Sholapur from where it will make a long march carrying the Union Jack through thickly populated territory and returning Jan. 25.

SON JOINS GANDHI

BOMBAY, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Harilal M. Gandhi, eldest of the Mahatma's sons and his favorite despite the fact he has been a long bitter opponent of his father's principles and mode of life, returned to the paternal fold today. He donned the white cap of the Nationalists and decided to join the "non-violence" crusaders.

VIOLATION LAID TO DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—United States Attorney George Z. Medalie today said that the federal corrupt practices act had been violated in the filing of the Democratic National Committee's annual report for 1928 which was signed by James W. Gerard as treasurer.

Prosecution, however, Medalie said, is barred by the three-year statute of limitations, the three-year period prescribed by law having ended Sunday, January 3, one day after Jacob J. Rosenblum, Assistant United States Attorney, confirmed reports that proper returns had not been made.

Medalie said, however, that the statute had not run against quarterly and annual reports made since the report of January 3, 1929, which covered the expenses of the national campaign of 1928.

PAYNE OFFERS AID ON WHEAT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, told a House committee today that if Congress makes available government-owned wheat the Red Cross will undertake its distribution to the needy.

Payne was testifying before the Agriculture Committee, which is considering measures similar to that passed by the Senate yesterday to release 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat for relief.

LESHER'S POST TO BE FILLED

A new board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes and a new county solicitor will be appointed this afternoon by the County Commissioners, Chairman Charles C. McGovern announced today. It was brought to the attention of the Commissioners today that the terms of seven members of the tax board and county solicitor expired with the old Board of County Commissioners.

At a Commissioners' meeting Controller R. G. Woodside announced the men were no longer county employes. McGovern later said the matter of appointing their successors would be taken up this afternoon.

Controller Woodside announced: "I will approve no warrants for the tax board or for the solicitor this month."

M. B. Lesher, hitherto county solicitor, said he concurred in the view that he as well as the tax board members were without jobs.

Two of the tax board members, George J. Schad, chairman, and C. J. McBride, secretary, are under indictment on fraud charges resulting from alleged irregularities prior to the September primaries. Other members are James Houlahen, W. Noble Matthews, John J. Cavanaugh, Emil Starke and John D. Graham. Their pay is $5,000 a year.

Goes to Jail 10 Days For Killing Rabbit

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—Alleged to have killed a rabbit with his automobile and then to have taken it home for dinner, John Bushovsky, 70, East Vandergrift, has begun serving a sentence of 10 days in jail here. He was unable to pay a $10 fine.

Repeal of Dry Law Beaten in Jersey

DAVIS SURVEYS LOCAL RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A majority of the small cities and towns of Pennsylvania will be able to provide relief for their own unemployed, according to a partial survey conducted today by Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

The mayors and burgesses generally reported local and state funds would be sufficient to meet this winter's problems. Direct federal relief was urged by mayors of Clairton, Belle Vernon, Galeton, South Brownsville and West Wyoming.

The mayors of Easton, Coatesville, McDonald and New Kensington said federal aid might be necessary unless conditions improved.

Italy's King Given Highest Papal Order

ROME, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Pope Pius today bestowed upon King Victor Emanuel the insignia of the Supreme Order of Christ, highest honor which the Vatican can give.

Doheny Aid Kills Self in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—William Henry Mealy, 70, an American associate of Edward L. Doheny in the discovery of important Mexican oil fields, committed suicide by shooting here today. Mealy, once a millionaire, was in reduced circumstances.

BEUTHEN, Upper Silesia, Germany, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Fourteen miners were entombed by a coal mine explosion near here today. All were believed to have been killed.

SENATE SPEEDS CREDIT BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Gratified at the reception of his surprise special message to Congress urging rapid enactment of his emergency economy program, President Hoover has obtained assurance from legislative leaders of expeditious action upon it.

A favorable report on the emergency Reconstruction Finance Corporation measure was decided upon today by a Senate banking subcommittee.

This came after new administration pressure for quick congressional action on the half-billion dollar project had come from Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

He testified before the House Banking Committee that the agency proposed by President Hoover to relax the strictures on credit that hamper a livening up of business was an "emergency proposition" that should be approved without delay.

Meyer suggested that if a permanent set-up were desired, that the law creating the corporation could be amended later. He felt the bill is a "sound principle of government in exceptional condition."

PRIVATE DEBTS MUST BE PAID, DILLON SAYS

Repudiation Will Wipe Out Basis of Civilization, Banker Tells Senate

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A sharp distinction between debts owed between governments and debts owed by governments to private sources was drawn today before the Senate Finance Committee by Clarence Dillon, head of Dillon, Read and Company, international bankers.

The quiet-spoken banker told the committee he had every confidence that foreign commercial debts would be paid "unless extraordinary political and economic forces make it impossible."

Debts owed by foreign governments to private sources, Dillon declared, must be paid or there will be "no basis left for the continuation of our civilization."

DIFFERENT DEBTS

Dillon drew a third category of foreign debts, those owing one government to another. Such debts, he said, have "always been in a different class." Nations, he said, have determined their attitude toward such obligations on political considerations. He continued:

"If debts are large enough, they naturally have a reflex on other debts, and each country must consider what repercussion its handling of these debts will have on its own situation."

Dillon, Read & Co. floated a total of $1,491,228,000 in foreign bonds, the witness testified. Of this amount, $270,918,000 was sold abroad, and $301,575,000 has been retired.

He admitted his firm's gross profits on the foreign securities it floated amounted to approximately $12,500,000.

SENATORS ARGUE

An argument developed between Senator Smoot, (Rep.), of Utah, chairman of the committee, and Senator Harrison, (Dem.), of Mississippi, ranking minority member, over the desirability of heavy foreign investments.

Harrison asked Dillon if the vast amount of money loaned abroad during the past 10 years had not constricted credit in the United States, when Smoot interrupted and asked Harrison if he would have had American banks and investors decline to lend money abroad during the country's prosperous years. Harrison replied:

"That is not the question. What I am saying is that the more we loan in foreign countries the more we contract credit in the United States."

Slayer of Relative Granted New Trial

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Supreme Court today granted a new trial to Harold Williams, convicted of murder in the first degree with the death penalty for the killing of William F. Prophet, his brother-in-law.

At the same time the conviction with life imprisonment of Williams' sister, Mrs. Clare Grace Prophet, for her part in the slaying of her husband was affirmed by the higher court.

BUS TRANSPORT CONTROL URGED ON I. C. C.

Examiner Favors Rails Entering Motor Service; Joint Board Advocated

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—One of its examiners today told the Interstate Commerce Commission it should have full authority over motor buses and trucks operating in interstate commerce.

In addition to recommendations for legislation for such control, the examiner, Leo J. Flynn, said the railroads should be permitted to enter the motor transport business and to acquire lines already in existence.

The railroads blame competition from trucks and buses for much of their present difficulty. To meet this, some southwestern roads in the past year have inaugurated store-to-door delivery of freight.

Where motor vehicles operate in not more than three states, a joint board composed of representatives of the states would be set up to pass on the issuance of licenses, rates and other matters connected with transportation.

At its discretion the commission would refer motor transportation problems involving more than three states to similar joint boards.

The examiner proposed that the commission have authority to review any orders or recommendations of the board and it would also have authority to assist in their formation, although this duty would primarily devolve upon state governors or regulatory bodies.

Co-ordination of motor and rail transportation was the dominant theme of the lengthy report. To enable the railroads to acquire motor vehicle lines already in operation, the commission suggested modification of the anti-trust laws.

The recommendations will be passed upon by the commission.

RAIL MEN JOIN MERGER FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Big Four railroad brotherhoods today intervened in the Eastern consolidation case, which goes to hearing before Chairman Porter, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, tomorrow.

The brotherhoods particularly objected to inclusion of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway in the Baltimore and Ohio system. They also asked to protect the interest of their members.

Motor Stops, Mail Pilot Lands On Ice

RED WING, Minn., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Forced down when his motor stalled at a height of 600 feet, A. R. Mensing, pilot of the Northwest Airways, St. Paul to Chicago night mail plane, made a safe landing on the ice of Bay City Bay, in the Mississippi River five miles from here last night.

After running a short way on the ice, the plane nosed over. It was damaged slightly, but Mensing was unhurt.

BECK DEMANDS DAVIS RUN AS ANTI-DRY

Philadelphia Leader Wants Prohibition Opponent In Senate; Suggests Vare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—An anti-prohibitionist will be the Republican candidate for the Senate in Pennsylvania next year if Representative Beck, of Philadelphia, can arrange it.

He served notice yesterday upon Senator Davis, who will have to stand for re-election or be succeeded by another, that an out-and-out proponent of Eighteenth amendment repeal was wanted.

He suggested three ways of achieving this:

First, to have William S. Vare become candidate if his health permits. Vare, head of Philadelphia's Republican organization, was once refused a Senate seat, but should he run again Beck held Davis should step down as a "gracious act."

Second, should Vare not run, Davis should declare for outright repeal.

As a third alternative, Davis must "face the possibility that some Republican who does favor repeal may be a candidate against him."

Beck may be this candidate, but disclaimed any desire for the post even while holding the door open. He was once Solicitor General of the United States and now is chairman of the Republican anti-prohibition bloc in the House.

Without even a hint as to his stand on the prohibition issue, Davis answered the Beck challenge by saying he has been too busy considering measures for unemployment relief to indulge in "day dreams concerning my personal aspirations."

advanced with a shotgun. He was fired on and returned the fire. Then one of the men called out:

"We're dead, come and get us."

Gas bombs had been used and after an interval Percy Heard, chief of police, donned a mask and entered the house. He identified the body of Jenning Young, lying on the floor with two big pistols under his head, and Harry Young, whom he ordered be removed to the hospital.

In their final act the Missouri desperadoes followed the advice of their mother, Mrs. J. D. Young, which was printed in the Houston morning paper. Mrs. Young at Springfield, Mo., yesterday said she hoped they would end their lives rather than submit to arrest.

PICTURE GIVES CLUE

A picture in a local paper of Harry Young, recognized by J. F. Tomlinson, 56-year-old carpenter, who had rented the room to the brothers, led to their being trapped. He saw the picture last night and took his family away to spend the night elsewhere and reported his suspicions this morning.

The entire neighborhood was in an uproar shortly after the officers arrived, and many persons had hurriedly departed from the area, fearing a prolonged shooting engagement.

The search turned to Houston yesterday when police learned that a man answering the description of Harry Young had visited the home of his mother-in-law to see his wife. Young took a bus to the suburban ship channel after being informed that his wife was not at the house.

TRACED BY AUTO

The fugitives' trail was picked up Sunday at Streetman, Tex., when the overturned automobile in which they had fled from Springfield, Mo., was found beside a highway. In it were a rifle and a shotgun.

Two men who crawled from the wreck accepted a farmer's offer to right the car, but while he was going for a team of mules, they deserted the car and continued their flight south. Before leaving they took the Missouri license plates from the car and buried them into a field.

Officers learned that the fugitives were picked up by the driver of a roadster. The car passed the men as they stood by the road, then turned back, and after a brief conversation, the men boarded the car and were driven away.

duty, International News Service was informed this afternoon.

Meanwhile, an investigation into the Chamberlain affair is being conducted by the local gendarmerie officials. The case is not being handled by Japanese military headquarters here at all.

Kazuhito Morishima, Japanese consul general, declared in an exclusive interview with International News Service:

"The names of the two soldiers are known to us and hence it was unnecessary to hold them.

"I informed the American consul general of the dismissal of the chief offender, who was a civilian interpreter employed by the military. Unfortunately he understood no English and little Chinese."

Whether Morishima's expression of "deepest regret" to the American consul general yesterday constituted an apology was the subject of sharp controversy today. Japanese military men asserted positively that it did not and meant only what Morishima said, that he greatly regretted the incident.

Chang Blames Government For Fall of Chinchow

PEIPING, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, commander of the Chinese forces which evacuated Chinchow, issued a statement from his headquarters today blaming the new government at Nanking for the fall of that Manchurian city.

Repeatedly, the statement said, he asked for money, munitions and reinforcements, but the government did nothing despite its assurances that the necessary steps for the protection of Chinchow were being taken.

Today's newspapers said Marshal Chang had called a meeting of the principal military commanders of North China for next week at Peiping and their conference probably would consider formation of a northern military bloc virtually independent of Nanking.

Gen. McCoy Picked For Manchurian Quiz

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The correspondent of the Havas News Agency reported today that the United States government had designated Gen. Frank R. McCoy to be the American member of the League's Commission of Investigation in Manchuria.

Counter Claim by Prince Denies Loans From Pola

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Prince Serge Mdivani, Georgian nobleman and now the husband of Mary McCormic, Chicago opera star, denies he ever borrowed $80,000 or any amount from his first wife, Pola Negri, the screen star.

Mdivani, now in the oil business, made the denial in an answer filed late yesterday to a note collection suit started last week by Miss Negri just before she left the hospital after a critical operation.

The Prince put in a counter-claim against Miss Negri for $121,000 which he declared he loaned Miss Negri in the course of their unhappy married life. This marriage ended in a sensational divorce in the Seine Tribunal at Paris, France.

Meanwhile Miss Negri, remaining at a fashionable Los Angeles hotel, declared she had sent to New York for the alleged $80,000 note to file the document along with her suit. The prince said:

"I had intended to forget and overlook the disappointment attending our domestic life. However, the recent action filed against me by Miss Negri indicates a desire on her part to lay the financial side of our married life before the courts and the public."

Throat-'Fishing' Surgeon Honored by Profession

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A modest Philadelphia surgeon whose skill at throat "fishing" has won him world renown, was honored by members of the medical profession last night.

He is Dr. Chevalier Jackson, who uses devices of his own invention to search the throats, bronchial tubes and lungs for strange articles that children swallow.

Members of the American Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Society and the Chicago Laryngological and Otological Society feted him as the dean of their profession. Souvenirs of the surgeon were Dr. Edward H. Carry, new president of the American Medical Association, Dr. Morris Fishbein, its secretary, and others.

If Dr. Jackson had a museum for his fishing relics it would contain many curious trophies—pins, peanuts, whistles, buttons, jewelry, coins, doll eyes, teeth, jackstones, seeds, and fishbones.

Dr. Jackson was a prominent practioner in Pittsburgh for several years, being on the staff of the Eye and Ear and several other hospitals, and professor of laryngology in the medical school University of Pittsburgh, prior to removing to Philadelphia about 15 years ago.

FINLAND DENIES DRYS' CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Diplomatic notice has been taken of a suggestion by the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals that Finland was under outside pressure in its recent vote on prohibition repeal.

In a formal statement Finland's minister to this country, L. Astrom, said there was no justification for this view. The board's weekly clipsheet said the "European liquor trades" sought to have diplomatic thumbscrews applied.

Astrom made the reply, he said, on information sent him by his government. With a balanced budget, he argues, Finland did not have to take the economic point of view in the referendum.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The final count in Finland's referendum on prohibition, as announced today, showed 70.45 per cent of the votes for repeal of the prohibition law, 28.14 per cent for retaining the law and 1.41 per cent for a modified program of wine and beer.

U. S. TO URGE CUT IN ARMIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—The question of Europe reducing her huge standing armies, rather than further material reduction of navies, is expected by the administration to dominate the discussions at the Geneva disarmament conference.

This was officially disclosed today as the five American delegates, entirely civilian and headed by Ambassador Dawes, opened their series of preliminary discussions with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson on the formation of an American policy.

The principal work of the American delegates, it was stated in a high quarter, will be to "contribute to the solution of the problems more vitally affecting Europe" and to be "as helpful as possible."

Baldwin's Socialist Son Arrives In U. S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Oliver Baldwin, a blond and radical son of a famous Conservative father, came to America yesterday to tell a lecture audience about Europe.

Puffing a 25-cent pipe on a deck of the Europa the Socialist scion of Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, told reporters he had traveled second-class on the journey over because he hadn't money enough to travel first.

Money Lack Halts Museum Expeditions

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Lack of financial support has compelled the American Museum of Natural History to halt all scientific expeditions, President Henry Fairfield Osborne said at the institution's annual meeting yesterday.

The 1932 budget of $1,372,761 would be balanced, he said, by recalling or stopping 12 expeditions, including that in Central Asia led by Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews.

Newly Appointed Policeman Held

Fifteen minutes after he had been appointed to the Harrison Township police force last night, Earl Bradley, 33, of Natrona Heights, was arrested on a morality charge. He was released in $1,000 bond for a hearing tonight before Justice of the Peace Emil C. Starke, of Tarentum.

Bishop Boyle Thanks Policeman for Gift

Hugh C. Boyle in a letter today acknowledged the police officer's $200 Christmas gift to the Little Sisters of the Poor. The money was the captain's share of the $1,000 reward of the Walgreen Drug Company for the capture of Legion Bedford, who shot and killed a drug clerk during an attempted holdup of the company's Wood street store.

Shoeless and Beaten Bride Still Avows Love for 'Stay-at-Home' Killer

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
International News Service.

M'CLURE, Pa., Jan. 5.—Faye Snyder, attractively frail 18-year-old wife of Martin Snyder, 26, accused slayer of his wife's middle aged suitor, today affirmed her love for her husband and coupled her affirmation with an outright denial of friendliness with Harry Wagner, 56, who wooed the girl-wife with petty favors—but who was stabbed to death by an infuriated husband, the state charges. A widow, a son and a married daughter mourn him.

"He didn't mean to do it. I know he didn't."

THANKFUL FOR TRIFLES

Concerning Wagner, she said:

"He was good to me and always wanted to take me out. Mart was a stay-at-home. But I always told him about Harry. He never seemed to bother, though. I guess he trusted me.

"Wagner had a car and sometimes he used to give me money. He gave me 50 cents to buy a Christmas present this year, and last year he gave me $2. He always helped us along that way."

Faye trembled as she spoke with a quaint naivete, the result of a lifelong bucolic environment. Stockingless and attired in a flimsy, sleeveless dress, she shivered as she leaned against a cupboard in the cold, dank room, almost bare of furniture.

Faye didn't see the slaying, she said. Upstairs she listened to the shouts and death scuffles. She had been quarreling with Mart. He planned to go away overnight to look for work and burned her only pair of dress shoes so she couldn't go out during his absence. He hadn't worked since they were married, she said, except at odd jobs. They lived with her parents.

BUMPED HER HEAD

He bumped her head against the wall, she said, and then added:

"It wasn't anything, though. It didn't hurt.

"Pop told Mart to cut it out and started to come downstairs. I went outa the room. I didn't wanta see them fight. I guess Harry tried to stop the fight and got into it himself.

"I don't believe Mart wanted to do it. I guess he just got mad, cause he's hot-tempered.

"No, I don't blame him because he abused me before and I took it like a man. Sure, I love him. I always will."

Weather Conditions.

There is a marked disturbance centered over Eastern Oklahoma this morning, apparently moving rather rapidly toward the Great Lakes. It is causing cloudy weather over most of the country, and rain or snow throughout the central valleys and the central and southern plains. The rainfall was heavy in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Northern Louisiana and Northern Texas. Another disturbance appears in the Far Northwest, while high pressure areas cover the plateau section and the eastern states. The weather continues mild from the central plains eastward and cold over the West. It will be somewhat warmer over this section tonight, turning colder tomorrow afternoon and night after the rainstorm passes.

Flood Loss Heavy All Over Germany

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Floods, washouts and breaks in dams were reported from all sections of Germany as a result of an unusually heavy rainfall and unseasonably mild temperatures today.

CHICAGO FIGHTS FOR SCHOOLS

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The grim battle to keep Chicago's schools open was carried to the State Legislature by Mayor Anton Cermak today.

More than 22,000 parents of school children attended an indignation meeting last night. They lustily cheered Mayor Cermak when he announced he would demand reformation of the county taxing machinery at Springfield, to raise funds for paying teachers' salaries long overdue.

"Our only hope," Cermak said, "is for legislation under which taxpayers can pay money to the county treasurer and receive credit when the tax bills are sent out."

Meanwhile Chicago municipal employes faced a wage cut of 20 per cent today. The wage-slashing program was adopted by the City Council when Mayor Cermak announced that the only alternative was the immediate dismissal of more than 2,000 city employes.

FIRE DESTROYS BRICK PLANT

Sixty thousand unbaked bricks were destroyed, a boiler house and machinery damaged in a spectacular $30,000 fire in the M. Lanz Brick and Tile Company plant at Thirty-fourth and Jane streets, South Side, early today.

The flames from the burning building and brick tunnels illuminated the hillside, attracting hundreds of persons to the scene.

The fire started in the boiler room, firemen said.

Firemen responding to the alarm were compelled to lay hose lines 1,500 feet to the nearest fire plug.

Princess' Daughter Divorced at Reno

RENO, Nev., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Nadejda Elizabeth B. Dorozynski, daughter of Princess Miguel de Braganza, widow of the late Prince Miguel of Portugal, was divorced here yesterday from Vadim Dorozynski, former captain in the Russian navy.

Details of the testimony were not disclosed. The complaint, filed secretly last October 19, merely charged extreme cruelty.

Russia Abandons Bessarabia Claims

BUCHAREST, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Under an agreement reached here today, Soviet Russia recognized Rumanian sovereignty over the rich agricultural region of Bessarabia and put an end to a controversy that has threatened to provoke a new European war.

SPEEDERS VIEW CHILD CRIPPLES

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Six men, under a police guard, stood in the hallway of a school for crippled children yesterday and surveyed the maimed youngsters, many of whom were victims of careless automobile driving.

It was part of the punishment they are to receive from Judge Frank M. Padden, before whom they are to appear later for sentencing. Five of them are charged with reckless driving, while the sixth is alleged to have been the intoxicated companion of one of the drivers. The Judge said:

"Perhaps this will bring home to these men the seriousness of their offenses in endangering the lives of other youngsters."

La Follette Submits Relief Compromise

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A $10,000,000 tax bill for unemployment relief is the compromise measure submitted to the Legislature on behalf of the La Follette administration.

The bill was offered in the Assembly last night and represents a cut of $7,000,000 from the original administration measure, which recently was defeated.

G. O. P. Club Head Shot in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Frank Macaluso, president of the Columbia Republican Club in East Fourteenth street, staggered into a nearby store shortly after midnight and collapsed. He had been shot in the back. He died a few minutes later.

Child Adopted 19 Years Ago Gets Million

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Catherine Molloy discovered yesterday that she had been adopted as a baby 19 years ago. The knowledge made her about $1,000,000 richer.

She listened to the will of Mrs. Luella Pearson Molloy, whom she believed to have been her mother. It recorded that Mrs. Molloy's own daughter died in infancy and Catherine was adopted to take her place. The document testified to Mrs. Molloy's affection for the girl and divided the bulk of her $2,000,000 estate between her and her foster-father, David J. Molloy.

BANK PARLEY IN HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—Committees representing three closed banks and the Chamber of Commerce of Washington, Pa., were here today to confer with Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon on a plan of merging the three institutions and reopening as one.

Today's meeting was expected to decide whether the Washington banks will be liquidated or reopened. Much agitation has shaken Washington since closing of its banks, involving intense criticism of the Banking Department methods and declarations that the banks are solvent, liquid and worthy of reopening.

LENZ CUTS LEAD OF FOES 3,385

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Ely Culbertson's side was 16,835 points ahead in the contract bridge match today, with only 21 rubbers remaining of the 150-rubber series.

Sidney S. Lenz, Culbertson's chief opponent in a test of bidding systems which began December 7 and which will end Friday night, said he still had a bare chance to win. Neutral experts regarded it as virtually impossible.

Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., gained 3,385 points in the seventeenth session ending early today. They won six of nine rubbers, making the series stand 71 for Culbertson and 88 for Lenz. The points became 112,050 and 95,215.

Mrs. Culbertson completed her stipulated quota of the match—75 rubbers—last night, but intends to resume her place opposite her husband at the final session Friday night. Tonight Michael Gottlieb will be Culbertson's partner, and Howard Schenken Thursday night. There will be no session tomorrow night.

Pupils Give Eggs To Pay Teachers

ST. JOE, Ark., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The pupils who used to take apples to school to please their teachers now are taking them eggs to pay their salaries.

When the school here faced closing, the children volunteered to do without eggs at their meals and give them to the school in lieu of tuition.

'HAPPY' MORAN DIES OF HURTS

Patrick E. (Happy) Moran, colorful and resourceful member of Pittsburgh's Detective Bureau for almost 16 years, was dead today, the victim of an automobile accident.

Moran first attained prominence among his brother officers for his work in the Boggs & Buhl holdup in which a messenger was killed.

It was through Moran's efforts that the two robbers who tried to rob Lawrence Sands, late bank president, of $50,000 in his home, were captured in West Virginia. Roxie Long was captured in Cherbourg by Moran after he jumped his bail, and in the Brotherhood Bank case, Moran was instrumental in recovering many thousands of dollars.

The former detective died last night in Presbyterian Hospital. As funeral arrangements were being made for Moran, an associate in the bureau, Vincent Cavanaugh, who was also his last partner who was discharged with him for supporting James Malone in the last mayoralty fight, was being buried.

He leaves his widow, Myrle; two sisters, Winifred McDonald and Katherine Gibson, and three brothers, Martin, James and Charles.

Paroled in Death, To Pay for Funeral

James W. Craig, 43, of 735 Wymore street, today entered upon a three-year parole for voluntary manslaughter, with a provision that he pay $508 funeral expenses of his victim and abstain from liquor for three years, otherwise he will have to serve two to four years in the workhouse.

Craig pleaded guilty December 14 to a charge growing out of the death of Stephen Landser, 51, of 1016 Uvill, street, July 4. The men, who had been drinking, fought at Steuben and Hershel streets, Landser falling on the curb and fracturing his skull.

Water Exhausted, Firemen Use Snow

KNOX, N. Y., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Firemen heaped snow on scorching rooftops last night and saved this Helderberg Mountain village from possible destruction. Fire starting in a large barn spread to a church when firemen found their water supply exhausted.

SENATOR LEWIS LAUDS HEARST RADIO TALK

Democratic Lawmaker Backs Publisher's Demand For Real American President

Universal Service

CHICAGO, Jan. 5. — William Randolph Hearst's radio speech broadcast Saturday night through the nation-wide facilities of the National Broadcasting Company caused considerable comment among political leaders today.

Among those who discussed the publisher's views and their comment, were the following:

SENATOR J. HAMILTON LEWIS—Mr. Hearst pointed out many errors which must be avoided by the democracy if it hopes to win this year. As to the candidates I feel that between now and the convention in July many events will arise that will bring forth either from Congress, in the House or Senate, or from among the present governors of the states new candidates whose names have not yet been brought forth. From these together with those now being mentioned Mr. Hearst will be very influential in aiding to bring about a good choice.

CLAYTON F. SMITH, chairman of the Democratic Managing Committee in Cook County—I agree with Mr. Hearst. We need for our candidate an outstanding American with the welfare of our country in his heart, one who knows and understands our problems. The attitude of the people today is much more crystallized than ordinarily. They are thinking more about the problems of government and the economic situation. The party must realize this and produce a man capable of meeting these needs.

MICHAEL L. IGOE, Democratic national committeeman—Mr. Hearst's radio speech was typical, straight to the point. He pleads for the return to the real old democratic principles of government and that is just what our country needs right now. Party success and Democratic success depend on it, and he is performing a service not only to the party, but to the country, in his declaration.

BOWERS URGES BROADCASTING BY CONGRESS

Political Expert Supports Hearst Plan to Reveal Important Capitol Debate

The campaign of the Hearst Newspapers Radio Service to bring the deliberations of Congress within hearing of the nation's citizens by radio was given high praise by Claude G. Bowers, publicist and historian and keynoter of Democratic national convention in 1928 in an address here last night.

Speaking on "how newspapers and radio stations may co-operate as allies of popular government" in a broadcast over WCAE, Bowers said that in these days of chaos and confusion the radio should be made an agency for the political education of the people in the interest of the preservation of democratic institutions.

DEDICATION SPEAKER

Bowers' address was broadcast as part of the formal inaugural program of WCAE under the ownership of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. On Friday he will preside at the annual Jackson Day dinner in Washington, at which three former presidential nominees of the Democratic party will be heard.

Concerning broadcasting of happenings in Congress, Bowers said:

"If a few have seized upon the instrumentalities of the state to serve their selfish ends, and have made government a stirrup by which to mount and ride, it is because millions of Americans have made a virtue of their ignorance of what is going on in the making of our laws.

"How can we make the radio an ally to popular government in America?"

UNMASK TRAITOR

ican and Merlin H. Aylesworth president of the National Broadcasting Company, spoke from New York and Harry M. Bitner, publisher of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and president of WCAE, Inc., answered their salutations from the studios of WCAE. This part of the program was distributed over a coast-to-coast network of the NBC.

Two hundred artists contributed their services.

Gene and Glenn, Tom Waring, Jack Turner and other stars from WTAM augmented the extravaganza which included Sisters of the Skillet, Russ Westover, creator of "Tillie the Toiler," Milt Gross, who draws "Count Screwloose" and Dave's Delicatessen," Erno Rapee's Orchestra, Reinald Werrenrath's Mixed Chorus, and other artists whose names are on the lips of the radio audience every day.

Hundreds of telephone calls complimenting the station on its splendid dedicatory program were answered at WCAE and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms.

Some of the telegrams:

SECRETARY MELLON—I send you congratulations and best wishes on the dedication tonight of radio station WCAE as a Pittsburg Sun-Telegraph institution.

GOV. PINCHOT—I congratulate not only the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on having acquired radio station WCAE, but the radio listeners who will have the pleasure of hearing the Sun-Telegraph's programs. Radio offers a marvelous opportunity and I am confident the Sun-Telegraph will make the best of that opportunity.

SENATOR REED—It is always a source of satisfaction to learn that radio broadcasting stations are passing into the hands of those possessing a definite sense of public service and that they will be conducted in the public interest. I am particularly glad for this reason to congratulate the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on its acquisition of station WCAE. The operation of such a station by one of the nation's greatest newspapers is guarantee that the public will be well served and that the interests of the community will not be neglected.

SENATOR DAVIS—The dedication of radio station WCAE constitutes another outstanding event in the progress of Pittsburgh. Based on the public service record of the Sun-Telegraph, station WCAE promises to play a vital part in the civic welfare of Pittsburgh and its environs. On this account I congratulate both the people of Pittsburgh and the sponsors of station WCAE for the mutually advantageous results which are foreshadowed by this new ownership.

JAMES HAMMOND, President of Gimbels—Our transaction with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in the sale of WCAE was one of the most pleasant experiences in my business career.

Realizing that a newspaper is in a far better position than a department store to service the radio audience through the great medium of WCAE, we rejoiced in placing the station in capable and trustworthy hands.

We know that under the guidance of this great newspaper organization, WCAE will extend its scope of public service and establish a favoritism among its listeners that will be of mutual benefit to owner and listener alike.

THOMAS A. DUNN, President of the Chamber of Commerce—The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce cordially congratulates the Sun-Telegraph on its acquisition of radio broadcasting station WCAE and predicts a continuance of its deservedly wide prestige and popularity on its new sponsorship.

COUNCILMAN ROBERT GARLAND—The oldest member in service in Pittsburgh's City Council felicitates a great Pittsburgh newspaper on its new venture and real progressive step in giving to the people of this industrial community a further and distinctly valuable service in quick dissemination of the important news of the day. May you live long and prosper.

BOY GONE, FEAR BLACKMAILERS

A note received almost two months ago in which their son's death was threatened unless $5 were sent to the blackmailers added today to the fear of Mr. and Mrs. Domino Pacitti of 87 Magee street that their son, Emilio 15, who disappeared yesterday may be dead.

Pacitti, a meat market proprietor, said he did not remember the details of the note which he turned over to police who refused to divulge the contents until their investigation is completed.

The boy disappeared yesterday after leaving his home for Duquesne University where he is a student in the preparatory department.

His sister, Rose 17, also a Duquesne student, made inquiries at the school and learned he had not attended his first class. Emilio is an only son and has two other sisters, Esther, 14 and Louise 11.

Drew Wins Reopening Of Judgment Case

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 5 (AP)—Woolsey Ar Drew, former City Treasurer of Bradford, Pa., yesterday was granted a reopening of a default judgment for $800,000 obtained by the City of Bradford. Supreme Court Justice Bernard Ackerman ruled after a hearing that Drew was in a sanitarium and unable to defend himself at the time the judgment was taken. Justice Ackerman refused to return the money which was seized by a sheriff from a Buffalo brokerage concern with whom Drew had an account. However, he issued an order demanding that the City of Bradford post a $10,000 bond to protect the former Treasurer.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

No Story at All.

THE OTHER AFTERNOON, a cab took me to my office. The driver said his name was Teddy Rose. He recognized me, and he asked my advice about a dancing school he wanted to open. I told him I thought it would be a waste of time. That wasn't what he wanted me to say, but he thanked me just the same.

When I reached my office, the driver refused to take any money. He said the ride was on him. I insisted, of course—but I had to fling the money at him before he would accept it. That gave me a kick. I told my secretary about it as soon as I sat down at my desk. He was very indifferent.

"Why not?" he offered. That driver was proud to have you in his cab. You're a big shot."

Soon a girl came in to see me. A high school girl. She said she wanted an interview for her school paper. But that was really a secondary purpose. What she actually wanted was some information about a journalistic career. Because that's the ambition that the kid cherished.

"What's on your mind?" I asked her suddenly. "Do you want to be a columnist some day?"

She nodded.

"Why?" I asked her.

She bounced her words. "I was an enthusiasm. I recognized from my own experience. And since experience is merely another term for past mistakes, I was pretty much at home."

"Oh," she returned, "it would be so much of a thrill. The wonderful people I could meet and write about. The celebrities who would know me. The whole thing would be so fascinating."

I don't know why I spoke as I did. I guess it was just the mood of the moment.

"You're only a baby," I told her, "and there are doggone few celebrities who wouldn't think twice before they refused to change places with you right now. You don't know how happy you are, kid. Try and stay that way."

"What you never have you never miss. When you get to be a celebrity—unless you're a very rare type of individual—you want to be a still bigger celebrity. And then, when the parade passes, you grow bitter. And you first begin to wish that you had never been a celebrity in the first place."

Be a smart little girl. Marry some nice boy when the right year rolls around and have babies. Forget about columns and celebrities. And then, if you have to get a divorce, it will at least mean something to you. Good day."

If that girl hasn't gone back to her high school and told any number of people that Hellinger is crazy, I'll be very much surprised.

A few hours later, in the paper's barber shop, I met Walter Winchell. Walter is far and away the most discussed newspaper writer in America today. We started together, and we are probably two of the very few men on Broadway who have remained pals through the years.

I looked at Walter as the barber combed his hair. He is working very hard today, and I admire him for it. But he was able to laugh heartily when we started. Today he seldom laughs. His hair was coal black when we started. Today it is thin and totally gray.

He shook his head in my direction.

"You're too stout," he said. "You look bloated. You're getting older, kid."

I went over to Moore's restaurant for dinner. It was early and the crowd hadn't arrived as yet. One of the town's younger columnists drifted in. He had an appointment with a producer, and he sat down with me to kill the wait.

Soon he was boasting. He is one of the chaps who fail to realize that the pats on the back end abruptly when the column is dropped. Unless Winchell, he doesn't know that columnists are only riding the crest of the vogue. His conceit is heartbreaking; his vanity childish.

"My mail is growing terrific," he assured me. "As a matter of fact, I don't know what to use first. I received a vaudeville offer today at a big price. Maybe I'll take it—maybe not. How did you do in vaudeville?"

"I'm a very bad actor," I replied.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Well," he went on, "I guess maybe I'll be all right if I decide to do it. As long as you've got a name, you know, they don't expect too much. Just watch me click in a big way."

"Well, there's my man now. Excuse me. Glad to have seen you again. If I can ever be of any assistance, let me know, willya?"

In a moment, he was gone. I didn't have the heart to tell him then what I'm willing to tell him now. His paper will fire him as soon as his contract expires, and probably a little sooner. He has failed . . .

Before I went home I stopped into one of the city's most luxurious speakeasies. I thought that I perhaps might meet a story there. I was wrong. I met many people but no stories.

A woman introduced me to a name. She seemed very proud of the fact that she was with one of the most important people in the motion picture field—15 years ago. He still looks fairly handsome, but he is a very bad actor. Very, very bad.

He motioned me aside.

"You might tell the public," he whispered, "that my being out with this woman means nothing at all. I'm still in love with my wife."

"You have nothing to worry about," I returned. "I don't write gossip."

He seemed disappointed.

"Well, then," he went on, "you can probably give the public a story of a different variety. Many people think that I am through with the screen. They are very much mistaken.

"My past triumphs follow me everywhere. My name means as much today as it ever did. I could well afford to retire and live at ease, but I don't feel that it would be true to my public.

"Accordingly, and this will be a great scoop for you, I have made up my mind to return to picture work. Several contracts have been offered me, and I am now deliberating upon which one to accept. How does that news strike you?"

Poor, foolish man. Doesn't he realize that I know he's living in the past? Poor, foolish hasbeen. . . .

Child Talks, Nurse, Man Held in Theft

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Identified by a 3-year-old boy as the "funny man" who visited his nurse and played with him, Howard Long was under arrest today charged with theft of $1,600 in jewelry.

Long and Anne Mueller, 24, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the nurse, are accused of looting the home of Benjamin Mayrovitz, on New Year's Eve.

New Yorker Loses Irish Life Plea

BELFAST, Ireland, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—The petition of Eddie Cullens, 28-year-old New Yorker for an appeal to the House of Lords from his conviction and sentence to death for the murder of Achmet Musa, Young Turk, was refused today. His execution is scheduled for January 13.

Agrarians, Loot, Fire Church in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Armed Agrarians today set fire to the Catholic church at San Miguel Del Monte, near Morella, capital of the state of Michoacan, after first looting the church of its valuable paintings and gold and silver ornaments.

DUNLAP AIDES FIGHT OUSTER

Three employes of the Department of Supplies, whom Director W. R. Dunlap attempted to discharge but who refused to stay fired, are no longer on the payroll, Dunlap announced today.

They are Bert M. Doty, contract clerk; Miss Margaret M. Ganley, commodity clerk, and E. Boyd Birch, utility clerk. Birch is Republican chairman of the Seventeenth Ward. The positions were cut out by Council in budget session last week.

Doty and Miss Ganley, appearing for work today, informed Director Dunlap that they had been advised by the Civil Service Commission yesterday that they still held their positions. Dunlap said the positions are non-existent, but that he would confer with the City Solicitor and Civil Service Commission on the matter.

Two months ago Director Dunlap sought to change the classification of the trio from civil service to preferred, but was balked and the three clerks remained on the payroll until Council abolished the positions.

OFFICERS HELD IN LIQUOR 'FIX'

Chalfant Borough's police chief, John Thomas, and Motorcycle Policeman E. C. Wagner, of Forest Hills, were at liberty in $1,000 bond today pending arraignment on charges of extortion and conspiracy.

County detectives who made the arrests said the two were involved with Justice of the Peace Davis Buttyan, of Chalfant, who is alleged to have "fixed" a liquor charge. Buttyan is also at liberty in $1,000 bond awaiting hearing.

COACH CUTOUTS BRING NEW THRILLS

$500 in Prizes Offered For Best Assembled Model; Supplies Furnished Free

There's a new kind of thrill in store for boy and girl readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph—yes, and for older readers too.

Hundreds of Sun-Telegraph readers will be assembling the fascinating Petite Napoleonic Coach which this newspaper will give away free to everyone who wants it.

The gergeous red-blue and gold replica of Napoleon's famous carriage—the same carriage that thousands of boys are building in the $75,000 competition of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild—is a gift everyone will want.

Children will prize it as a toy, for though assembled from cardboard, it runs like a real coach. Adults will see in it an appealing decorative object for the home. And the coaches are free, as long as they last, to everyone presenting the coupon which appears in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph. Each comes in a big envelope, all ready to cut out and assemble.

But that is only half the story. In addition to giving away the cutouts of the Petite Napoleonic Coaches, the Sun-Telegraph is offering $500 in cash for the best model coaches cut out and assembled. This contest is only for boys and girls under 16 who submit the finest coaches. The cutouts, however, are free to everyone.

Be sure to see next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph for full details of the contest, coupon entitling the holder to Petite Napoleonic Coach free, and list of places where the coach may be obtained.

Four Men Given Terms for Holdups

Four youthful holdup men who pleaded guilty today began serving terms in the workhouse. John Hart, 23, and Frank Barnhart, 23, both of Oakdale, were sentenced six to 16 years; Steve Longstreth, 21, of Oakdale, five to 10 years, and John King, 21, of Carnegie, one to four years.

The first three admitted 14 robberies of filling stations, drug stores and restaurants, King taking part in two.

Storekeeper Paroled Over Slot Machines

After denying in court that school children played the slot machines in his store, Harry Pappas, 1925 East Carson street, who pleaded guilty to possession of three machines, was paroled for a year. His place had been raided October 20 by order of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who had received a complaint that school children frequented the store.

Father Cox Heads Jobless Army

By dawn the streets were jammed for 20 blocks and the priest and his lieutenants were working feverishly to get the procession on its way.

CLINGS TO AUTOS

Men clung to the running boards and hoods of the autos and trucks as the procession started up Liberty avenue.

Even with the machines overloaded only approximately 4,000 men were in the cars when the march started.

His cars would carry one group for several miles, unload them and return to pick up the walking contingent. In this way, although its speed was considerably slowed, the army moved steadily forward.

All through the Strip District, Bloomfield, East Liberty and Wilkinsburg, the parade moved through sidewalks that often were packed three and four deep with cheering spectators—men who shouted, women and children who waved handkerchiefs and flags.

The marchers were thumbing rides as they straggled along in groups ranging from three and four to as many as 60. Some succeeded, and a select few even hitch-hiked far in advance of the main section of the army.

MORE AUTOS DUE

By noon the rest of the marching contingent had straggled into an eight-mile long line.

More autos joined the parade along its route, which went by way of the William Penn highway to Blairsville, Armagh, Johnstown, Ebensburg, Huntingdon, Lewistown, Harrisburg, Frederick, Md., and Arlington, Va.

Delegations concentrating in divergent centers of Allegheny and adjoining counties moved into Pittsburgh early today. Almost every municipality and hamlet in Western Pennsylvania was represented.

AWAIT START

All were required to register and stand inspection. Those that needed faces and hands washed, washed. Those that needed shaves, shaved. Else they couldn't go. It was one of Father Cox's edicts.

Scores of police from all over the city were mobilized near St. Patrick's Church as the crowd gathered. Mindful of Communists who heckled a preliminary meeting of the marchers last week, Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh sent all night duty motorcycle officers and radio cars into the district.

A fire engine also stood by.

Shortly before the great mass of humanity, jamming trucks to capacity, moved away, hundreds filed into Old St. Patrick's Church for the early morning worship. Hundreds stood in the doorway unable to gain admittance.

As dawn broke and a blue haze clung to the city, the milling thousands sought seats in already crowded automobiles.

MOVE ON FOOT

Others less fortunate, moved away afoot, hopeful that the caravan of trucks would overtake them soon.

Jobless men from every walk of life were in the milling crowds.

Fords lined up alongside of more imposing automobiles. Trucks of ancient vintage sputtered ahead of smooth-running trucks "just out of the garage."

And in the delegation that walked there were "white collared men" keeping step with his brother attired in blue denim.

Father Cox led the parade, riding in a large relief truck. He was assisted by four adjutants, 40 captains and 80 lieutenants, each having charge of a division or a section. The only banners carried were American flags and signs identifying the men as belonging to Father Cox's unemployment march.

JOBLESS ASSEMBLE

Long before daybreak the priest's aides were assembling their men. Unemployed men from Sharpsburg, Millvale, Etna and other communities of the north section were loaded into trucks at Lincoln avenue and Ohio street, Millvale, first being searched for weapons. Late last night Father Cox announced that his aides would personally prosecute any man found with a dangerous weapon.

Men from the West End, Elliott, Crafton, Ingram, Carnegie, Oakdale and other western communities gathered at Wabash avenue and Main street. The meeting place on the North Side was Cedar and Union avenues.

The South Side marchers gathered at the South Side Market House; those from the South Hills at the relief center in Brownsville road, Mt. Oliver; Castle Shannon marchers gathered at the south end of the Liberty Tunnels; Wilmerding, Homestead, Hays and Munhall men assembled at Eighth avenue and Amity street, Homestead, and the downtown and East End districts of the city gathered at St. Patrick's Church.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—John H. Brown, 90, commander of the local post of the G. A. R., died today in a hospital. He was struck and injured by a revolving door at the postoffice.

Coroner Holds Man In Death by Auto

William Gracco, 30, of 3108 Ellers street, was held for court on a manslaughter charge today at a coroner's inquest into the death of Albert Englert, 20, of 437 Mansion street.

Gracco is accused of being the driver of a car which struck Englert as he walked into the street from behind a trolley at Second avenue and Elizabeth street, Hazelwood, on December 21.

Westinghouse Sales Campaign Planned

Sales and advertising plans for 1932 were outlined to 100 Westinghouse refrigerator dealers at a dinner at Pittsburgh Athletic Club last night. I. W. Danforth, president of Whitehill, Danforth Company, and W. I. Bickford, secretary-treasurer of Iron City Electric Company, were hosts.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

CHURCHES URGE PUBLIC WORKS FOR JOBLESS

Religious Groups Combine in Stressing Need for Prompt Action by U. S., States

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—A joint statement on unemployment was issued today by the Social Service Commission of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Department of Social Action of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the Social Justice Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. Representatives of the three organizations, the Rev. James Myers, the Rev. R. A. McGowan and Rabbi Edward L. Israel, interpreted the statement as having extraordinary significance.

They said the human need of the present winter and the urgency of adequate steps had impelled the three organizations to draft and issue a joint statement on phases of the relief, reduction and prevention of unemployment. In part, it said:

"We believe that immediate and adequate appropriations should be made available by national as well as local governments for such needed and useful public works as road construction, development of parks, elimination of grade crossings, flood control projects, reforestation and the clearing of slum areas in our cities.

"If such a governmental program be undertaken now we will face the months that lie ahead with prospects of work for a large number of unemployed and consequently increased purchasing power which will stimulate all business."

Seal of Commerce Broken in Moving

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Commerce Department, in the throes of moving into its great new building, has suffered catastrophe.

Moving men dropped and broke the great seal of the department. However, provision had been made for just that and E. W. Libby, chief clerk, immediately drew a reserve seal out of a safe. The understudy seal, however, is not as large nor as impressive as the great seal.

Job Crisis Revolt Fought in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Martial law was in effect throughout Honduras today in an attempt by the government to crush a revolutionary movement inspired by the discharge of several hundred men by the United Fruit Company.

Federal troops and insurgents clashed in several towns, principal outbreaks occurring throughout the banana zone, where the men were put out of work.

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to set on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Jobs* Have Their Drawbacks

"IT'S a wonderful opportunity—I suppose," Sue's voice faltered, "but Cleveland's so far away!"

Jim rubbed his ear ruefully. Sue was so attached to her home, her parents and her friends. But he couldn't refuse a job on that account.

Just then the telephone rang. Sue lifted the receiver. It was a call from Cleveland—from Jim's new general manager.

"My wife and I would like you to visit us," she heard him say. "We could help you find a house and get settled." The warmth of friendship Sue felt in his voice reassured her. She turned from the telephone smiling.

"I think the new job's going to be all right, Jim," she declared. "And that call gives me a thought. If I'm lonely I can always telephone home."

"Dynamite Moll"

The Shadow," radio's outstanding mystery character again will be heard when he introduces "Dynamite Moll," the first of a new series of thrilling half-hour mystery dramas.

True to his name "The Shadow" will hover in the background to set the scene for the dramas in the same manner as in his previous series which ended last July. The new series is to be presented under the sponsorship of the Hachmeister Lind Company of McKees Rocks, Pittsburgh, Pa. Again the music of George Earle's Orchestra will be heard supplying the musical curtains between scenes.

Today's Tid Bit:

Bugs Baer was the life of the WCAE Sun-Telegraph dedicatory program last night, keeping everyone in live spirits with witty remarks both on and off the air.

He told us the story of the absent-minded station executive whose wife was anticipating one of those blessed events.

Late one afternoon, his 'phone rang and an excited feminine voice announced, "It's a boy, sir."

"Tell him," came from the official, whose mind was miles away, "that he'll have to see my secretary."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Right after the arrival of the New Year, with its attending festivities, the winter season comes to an end, and many folks turn their attention to the sunny southland. Those who remain in the city busy themselves with charities, informal gatherings concerts theaters and art exhibits.

Among the first of the Southern resorts to attract is Palm Beach. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander with their daughter Madelaine are expected at their Palm Beach place. White House the middle of the month. The Alexanders' yacht the Viator, will arrive shortly, too.

Mrs. Henry K. Rea with her small grandsons Michael and Oliver Rea are already there and Mrs. Rea's son Henry Oliver Rea will join her later in the season. Mrs. Rea is active in the Society of Arts and the Garden Club there, and plays a prominent role in entertaining.

Mrs. I. Brookman Cuddy of Sewickley is expected soon at her Sea Spray avenue home. She's active in the Woman's Guild of Bethesda by the Sea, Palm Beach.

Mrs. William Johnston has joined her son and daughter-in-law, the Drew Johnstons. Mrs. Eugene W. Pargny is expected at Whitehall, a residential club at the fashionable resort.

* * *

"The Chocolate Soldier" at the Nixon and "Strange Interlude" at the Alvin are the theatrical attractions this week. At the Nixon last night I saw the Frank J. Kiers and their son-in-law and daughter, Baron and Baroness Jean Pellenc. The baroness, who was Frances Kier, one of the debs of 1930 before her marriage in Paris, wore black velvet with a matching wrap, and Mrs. Kier chose black chiffon and lace and black velvet wrap. The baron and baroness haven't decided yet when they'll return to Paris.

Seen at Theater

The William A. Duckhams' I had a glimpse of, too with Mrs. Duckman looking charming in a black chiffon dinner gown having brief sleeves and interesting white embroidery on the full skirt.

Honoring Virginia Goldsbury, daughter of the Royal S. Goldsburys, of Edgeworth, who'll marry James O. Flower on January 11, are many affairs. On Saturday Miss Coral Quay will entertain for the bride and the bridegroom-to-be and members of the bridal party at a dinner in her home. And that evening the junior W. C. Robinsons will give a dance in the Sewickley Heights home of their parents, the W. C. Robinsons, of Franklin Farms. Sunday will bring a luncheon in the Edgeworth Club with Thomas E. Rhodes as host.

SATIN PROMISES TO REMAIN IN FAVOR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Those of us who are set on satin sometimes have a hard task to discover a suitable model. And this, we suppose, is the main reasons why dressmakers are always receiving orders to run up a little black satin frock and why one sees so many satin frocks that are distinctly the result of home dressmaking. For the wealthy woman and the woman on a very limited dress budget are not only sisters beneath the skin but above the epidermis as well.

Lucile is in heavy lustrous black satin. The shoulder straps are of strass and a buckle of strass clips together the folds of the draped waistline in back. A double chou of satin suggests the bustle and there is a grouping in back of much of the skirt fulness. A happy after-thought and one likely to be much copied—is the addition of a single ruffle across one arm just below the shoulder, completed by a large flower in vivid red velvet.

INTO THE heart of every one of us there steals at times the longing for a simple but well-made satin frock, be it for daytime wear or for gay evenings. And we go from place to place only to find that here and there can be found a model usually indifferently made. Certainly it is generally impossible to secure a sufficient variety from which to make a suitable choice. But this season there has been plenty of satin and it looks as though this material is to be on the card for early spring wear. A black crepe satin frock with the dull and shiny sides both used, is grand for general day wear and is good for a long season of service. And black satin at night is always pleasing with the proviso, of course, that the frock must be a good one. There's nothing so pathetic as an inexpensive satin evening frock, for unless the satin frock is well done, all models at night, like the cows, look alike.

* * *

AS CONCRETE evidence that this is and is to be a satin season, we have made a sketch of an evening frock in black satin. The evening frock, by

Dr. R. A. Millikan Talks on March Of Science

For the first time in the history of the Twentieth Century Club a Nobel prize winner spoke from its lecture platform when Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan talked yesterday on "The March of Science." It was a profound, scholarly address, setting forth, without the slightest trace of presumption, the noted physicist's views (and also those of other scientists) on the relation between science and religion. The two are not antagonistic, they are the two great forces which pull men upward and onward and are intimately related, Dr. Millikan declared.

Science has advanced more in the last century than in the 4,000 previous years, Dr. Millikan stated, commenting on the change in man's whole outlook on life, analyzing this change and pointing out that it had come through the new wide-spread knowledge of the universe.

Force and Motion

Through the discovery of the scientific method (accepting brute fact and discarding all hypothetical thinking) and its application, man now knows the relation between force and motion, he knows what heat is, though this idea did not come into human thinking until 1850, nature, once regarded as capricious, is now known to be dependable and even controllable, and with this knowledge man has come to an understanding of a God that rules through law.

Dr. Millikan termed the Golden Rule the supreme contribution of religion and he classed it with the discovery of the uniformity of nature and the working of the natural law as the great steps in man's progress. Practically all the men who have introduced these great changes of the last 100 years have regarded themselves as essentially religious, the speaker remarked, classifying religion as "conscience" and science as "wisdom." The march of science certainly should not undermine any religion that is capable of broadening and accepting new views; any other probably ought to be undermined, he observed.

Whether the College Club needs an evening program will be decided at a dinner meeting to be held January 20 at 6:30 o'clock. The desire for this new activity would seem to have been indicated at the occasional evening dinner-dances which have been well attended and the holiday tea given for 1931 graduates by Mrs. John E. Nelson, a past president.

Evening Programs

Reservations are asked for the dinner which will be presided over by the president, Mrs. J. Brooks Huff.

On account of Miss Mary Emma Woolley's appointment by President Hoover to the disarmament conference, the club has been forced to cancel the luncheon planned in her honor for January 30.

* * *

Lucille Miller Werner is arranging the program for Friday afternoon's meeting of the music department Women's Club of Mt. Lebanon, which will be held in the home of Mrs. Adolph Krebs, Parkway drive. Mrs. J. C. Lyle will be hostess for the luncheon which precedes the program.

Mrs. J. B. Nicklas, Jr., president of club, has called a meeting of the board at her home, Main Entrance drive, Thursday, at 1:30.

'The Chocolate Soldier' Is As Fresh and Sweet As 25 Years Ago

By GEORGE S. SEIBEL

What a joy and satisfaction it must be to singers and actors to appear in a thing as radiant and rich as "The Chocolate Soldier," which was revived at the Nixon Theater last night. My mind went back to some other things—like that "East Wind" which blew from here to New York and died out as a zephyr—and the difference, what a difference! "East Wind" was like a pump, and "The Chocolate Soldier" is like a fountain. Say nothing of the quality of the water.

George Seibel

You became aware of this soon after the first bars of Oscar Strauss' melodious score twinkled and purled over the audience. Nobody seemed to work—it was like a holiday for musicians and cast. Something elfin, puckish, vernal was in the air. Everything flowed spontaneously and gaily along—the opera bouffe war itself as the merriest jest of all: the ferociously hirsute Bulgarians as harmlessly jovial as Santa Claus.

If there is any pessimist, misanthrope or melancholiac, let him go to the Nixon and he will be cured.

For one thing, Bernard Shaw's adapters has provided a perfect libretto. For another thing, Improvec by Viennese and Amer-

$750.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name and $750 00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours or any other name you think of. It may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre is the beautiful Heidi Mann. Like most of the stars she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it $750.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Mann's publicity director says: "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a crushed name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before January 10, 1932. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. Paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams Studio A-716, 1223 N. Broadway Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $750.00, even if submitted on a post card or scrap of paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

They've up and made a musical play out of "Smiling Through," which Jane Cowl starred in after helping to author it. Vincent Youmans has composed the tunes for the new adaptation, which is by Brian Hooker, who made the finest translation yet of "Cyrano de Bergerac" that in which Walter Hampden starred. Vince also is the producer of the new "Smiling Through," which comes to the Nixon next Monday with Norma Terris, Ada-May, Charles Winninger and Tom Powers, last seen here as the king in the Guild production of "The Apple Cart." Thursday will be seat day.

Unless the bookers get to work on the books in the meantime, the next show in the Alvin will happen January 18, with "Everybody's Welcome," big musical show that is still playing on Broadway. Broadwayites promised to be with it are Frances Williams, Oscar Shaw, Ann Pennington and Harriet Lake. If the Alv is dark next w. e., as seems probable now, the box office boys will be saying everybody's welcome next Munduh.

* * *

Small Timer says the man whose wife keeps him on pins and needles has a hard time remembering her good points.

Employes of Warner Theaters in the Pittsburgh district passed the hat among themselves and found more than a thousand bucks in it after it had gone around. This they turned over to the unemployment relief committee yesterday. Dr. Rockwell, the eminent surgeon of the stage, who cuts up for the radio on occasion, has sent out a calendar with footnotes that for January being "There's many a sip 'twixt the hip and the lip." Katharine Cornell has purchased Sidney Howard's latest play, "Allen Corn," and will present it after the conclusion of the road tour of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," still running in New York. Dorothy Stone and the Rooney boys, Pat and Pat, will do de luxe movie houses of the West, appearing separately in their own acts and together in an afterpiece. . . Movie folks are subtle. They've changed the title of the James Cagney-Joan Blondell film, "The Roar of the Crowd," to "The Crowd Roars."

Lew Kelly, noted for his "dope" skit in burlesque, has been added to the cast of "The Miracle Man" talkie.

COMEDY THAT'S SUPERB

Is it any wonder everybody was at home? The comedy, especially, has never been done with more relish.

Both of the principals, Vivienne Segal and Charles Purcell, had a large share in this. Purcell interpolated delicious monkeyshines that would have brought a titter from Tutankhamen. And Vivienne was as roguishly feminine as a butterfly just returning from a nectar speakeasy.

They can sing, too, this pair of Shavian lovers. Their "Letter Song" was encored again and again. "My Hero" had a haunting thrill; the "Chocolate Soldier" duet clicked like a pair of castanets.

But the best of the comedy was furnished by John Dunsmore as Col. Casimir. He has the superb unction of the royal line in which De Wolf Hopper reigned so long. He is a comedian who knows that being funny is a serious business. May his tribe increase!

HURRAH FOR BULGARIA

Edmond Mulcahy as Massakroff and his goose-stepping scarecrow regiment incite one to hurrah for Bulgaria. Whatever foe these valient warriors might meet would be convulsed with laughter and forget to shoot.

Marian Palmer was an impish Mascha and Sarah Edwards an amusing Aurelia, while Allan Rogers looked so sleek and self-satisfied as the impromptu hero Alexis that no baker could turn a better one out of his oven.

The way everybody worked together was beautifully shown in the famous sextette, the "Tale of a Coat," every little detail of which got its full value. In short, dear reader, you probably know by now that this is a fine revival of a fine operetta, so don't miss it.

Tully Marshall Exposed As Glue Smearer

The appearance of John and Lionel Barrymore in their first picture together, has, among other things, solved an old time studio mystery. For now it's known who put the glue in the escape box of Houdini, when he did his famous packing case trick in pictures.

At the time, several years ago, Houdini had plenty of trouble getting out—and then it was discovered that somebody had glued all the boards in the box—so that ordinary methods wouldn't work with it.

There was an investigation—but nothing came of it.

On the "Arsene Lupin" set at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, the Barrymores exposed the secret. They insisted that Tully Marshall, playing the millionaire in the new picture and who played the "heavy" in the old Houdini picture, is the man who wielded the glue-brush.

Predicament

Miriam Hopkins finds herself in the predicament of loving a man, who is really two different men, in the talk film version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," opening Saturday in the Warner. Frederic March plays the title roles.

War Horrors In German Picture

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"All Quiet on the Western Front" is just a nursery tale compared with "Comrades of 1918," the war picture at the German Avenue Cinema, in Liberty street. Here are horrors on horrors—massacre, screams, madness, with cooties to furnish the light comedy. There is hardly any plot, aside from the soldier who comes home to find his wife in the arms of another. It is just war, and everybody knows what war is since Gen. Sherman gave the secret away.

Not a pleasant picture, by any means—nothing like the springtime in Vienna romances—but a grim tragedy with tanks as the heroes. The one memorable line is the soldier's answer when a comrade says, "But we are heroes."

"If we were heroes, we'd be back home long ago."

If anyone has illusions about the heroism and glory of war, this picture will cure him.

Same Cast Again With Mr. Montgomery

Robert Montgomery is surrounded by almost the same cast in "Courage" as he had in "Man in Possession." In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture are Alan Mowbray, Reginald Owen, Beryl Mercer, and Forrester Harvey, all of whom played in Bob's first starring picture.

'Strange Interlude' Acted In Alvin Without Guild Blessing

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Eugene O'Neill's queer drama with an odd title, "Strange Interlude," came to the Alvin last night for the first time as a road attraction without the blessing implied by Theater Guild management. While the blessing was lacking, and, perhaps, certain suavity of manner of the revered Guild, also, the production, now under the paternal guidance of O. E. Wee, was many, many degrees away from the shoddiness one expects to be the garb of abandoned children. In fact, when price, compared to that of the Guild, is taken into consideration, this presentation of O'Neill's expansive exposition of psychological morbidity appears most excellent.

PROFESSOR HUMAN

One might almost say that it is worth the price of admission just to see the part of Prof. Leeds played with real human impulses for once at least. Heretofore the role of the Professor has not attracted any particular attention. It always has been "adequately" acted, perhaps, but Maurice Morris does quite a little better than adequately. He makes the man human, articulate, understandable and worthy of sympathy, but possibly a bit more theatric than the Guild would approve. Perhaps it has been the lack of this trifle of staginess that has prevented us from ever becoming friendly towards Prof. Leeds. As Maurice Morris plays him he is not just a blob of gloom.

KNOWS ALL THE LINES

Of course, the Professor's daughter, Nina, is the very life's blood of "Strange Interlude," and it is easy for a reviewer, at the end of the ninth act of a play, to forget all about an actor not seen after the first act curtain, as the Professor's fate is. And it is easy to remember Nina. Artistically, it is not all pleasure to recall her as portrayed by Mabel Julienne Scott. Miss Scott knows all the lines, and that's something, for the part is very long. She knows all the postures, too, but she does not have the facility of projecting the depths of feeling. She merely intimates them, if you can make the distinction.

IMAGINATION NEEDED

So one in the audience imagines the soul-tortures of the neurotic Gordon-worshiping Nina instead of feeling them.

Yet the presentation of the play is something above the fair-to-middling grade, and should prove satisfactory to those who have not seen other productions, hence have no preconception as to what standards should be the basis of comparison.

In support of Miss Scott are Carroll Ashburn, as "dear old" Charlie Marsden; Courtney White, as Edmund Darrell; James Shelburne, as Sam Evans; also Mary Diehl, Charles Molnar, Peggy Hastings and Don Arbury.

Burton Holmes Show Listed for Tonight

Hollywood life and manners is the topic that is to open Burton Holmes' annual season of pictured travel talks at Carnegie Music Hall tonight. It is said to be a review of the things everybody wants to know about the city and industry that grew from a camera invention to a world of enchantment and escape for hundreds of millions of people.

Stars and the minor satellites pose in their homes and on the "lots" and audiences see how talkies are made as well as viewing hill-top villas, palaces, lowly bungalows, famous seaside resorts and fantastic architecture of the roadside shops and attend a symphony under the stars in the renowned Hollywood Bowl.

Girl Finds Screen Fame At Trail's End

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—An 18-year-old Fort Worth (Tex.) school girl, Florine McKinney, has found her pot of gold at the end of her flivver's trail. A Hollywood studio has given her a contract calling for $750 weekly salary, according to the records of Superior Court, where official approval of the contract was made because Miss McKinney is a minor.

"Every time we hit a bump we dropped something, either a bolt or a nut," said the young actress, telling of her trip by automobile from Texas. "My teacher, Mrs. Eva Brown, who accompanied me, kept urging me on, 'Hollywood or bust,' she repeated. And that's what kept up my courage."

At one-third the mouth wash cost protect the whole family against colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC goes 3 times as far because it's 3 times as powerful as any other leading mouth wash. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

PLAIN, simple arithmetic is causing millions to change to Pepsodent Antiseptic. Because Pepsodent Antiseptic is three times as powerful as other leading mouth washes . . . hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times more for your money and gives extra protection against colds, irritated throats. For your protection against germs associated with common ills remember there are really only two leading kinds of mouth washes. On the one hand you have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. On the other hand you have Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe even if used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs within 10 seconds. It is bad enough to have germs in your mouth before you gargle . . . it's worse to have germs after you gargle . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe—and save money! Now is a good time to start.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when combating colds and sore throat irritations. For at the same time it checks bad breath. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics . . . and it kills germs when diluted.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Throat Irritations
Voice Hoarseness
Bad Breath
Cold Sores
Canker Sores
Mouth Irritations

Unequalled Relief From Gas

"I have used A-CHINE for indigestion and gas pains and find that it has no equal. It is classed alone. Nothing can compare with it," says John D. Gates, of Chicago, Ill.

End gas sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Make guarantee A-CHINE ends your stomach trouble or money back. All druggists have A-CHINE.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Then you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and raises chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Portrait of a Colyumist's Sec'y

(Talking to Her Boss)

George D. Gaw, official spokesman for the Mayor of Chicago, called . . . Said the city thanks you for youknowhat, very appreciative . . . You told me to remind you about the Hutton tribe finally splitting the Preston Sturges' (Eleanor Hutton) . . . She's in Yurrup without him, you know . . . But did you know that she was in the hosp three wks ago for an append op? . . .

Speaking of the sassiety set—here's something cute about the Buzzy Warburton Juniors . . . She was the ex-Mrs. Denny Pierce . . . You could still call them newlyweds—they were sealed only this year . . . Well, being newlyweds they still are in the teasing-each-other-stage . . . The other day a telegram came to their shack for Mr. B. Warburton . . . As brides usually do—Mrs. Warburton opened and read it—and did her face get cerise? . . . I'll say it did . . . For the wire read:

"So you're the type of wife who opens her husband's mail, eh?" It was signed B. Warburton, Jr. . . . I heard Jack Foster, the radio critic, make his debut as an airagrapher over the "Going to Press" Hour . . . Well, I phoned all over town for you so you could come up here and watch him get nervous—and was he? . . . His face got as pale as Mark's and he coughed twice, stumbled three times and was glad when it was over . . . Ever hear Nick get nervous on the air? Or Jerry? . . . Foster has a better voice—but I'm afraid Jack won't ever win any radio polls, heheheh.

The newsdealer at 167th St. and Jerome Ave., was told by an eve'g paper that he would get no more of that rag if he kept giving such a ballyhoo to that mag . . . Ned Brown is bringing out "Pardon My Glove" between covers backed by Madison Sq. Garden . . . A former colyumist is being snubbed at the Newspaper Club for failing to pay some poker wagers . . . The late Harry Reichenbach's brother, Walter, will sue him for $83 unless he settles this wk. . . . After promising to pay, the sore loser and welcher alibied in this manner: "Your playing was not ethical!" . . . Incidentally, Reichenbach told me that this dope is telling people at the club that you copped his style and that he is thinking of suing you! . . . What! After 10 years? . . . Now he's making up his mind, if any? . . . Ouch! My chapped lips!

It probably is a gag, but I. Irwin, the booking agent, sent gifts on Xmas to friends . . . They were calendars—all for the year of 1933 . . . I see that Husing is credited with the coining of the expression "Believe you me" . . . When you see Ted, tell him it is older than any colyumist's latest gag . . . Seems to be some fuss over at the Musicians' Union . . . Mr. Canavan, the chairman, put up a ticket at the recent election and was beaten badly . . . Then the men who were elected were expelled! . . . And some were fined $200.

Talk about putting on appropriate shows for children, as you did the other column, the Rivoli recently had a fine picture of "Sooky" with a trailer announcing the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde flicker to come . . . The shots of Jekyll are so hideous that I had a nightmare myself that night, and I don't know what my friend's 7-year-old daughter would have had, had I not put my hand over her eyes . . . Who uses all that rare judgment in those theaters? . . . Dr. Amey says your heart, lungs, liver and general conditions is Grade A . . . The low blood pressure is from the grind . . . Your blood count was 90, which is practically perfect—85 is considered very high, you know . . . I told you not to worry. He says eat the proper foods, sleep as much as possible and don't let trivial things bother you. So I told him your answer to all that would be: "Oh sure!" . . . Al Schwartz says that Helen Morgan fractured a rib last month—but you ought to see the piano!

Wonder how those Hollywood correspondents for the N. Y. papers feel now, after the way they kept saying that Greta was there when all the time she was here, as her photos certainly proved . . . L. P., you know, also tried to say Greta was out there. . . . The alibi now is that it was a publicity stunt . . . Oh, sure! . . . Clarke wanted to know why you made such a fuss about her—so I told him that you didn't care—but when the Coast scribes said that you were faking your news reports on Garbo—you had to produce her in the flesh to save your alleged rep.—R. C.

Former Army Aviator Directs Air Film

Stephen Roberts, former army aviator and a film director since 1922, has been named to direct "Sky Bride," a screen story of modern aviation to be produced at Hollywood studios as soon as Richard Arlen, cast in the leading role, returns to Hollywood from New York where he is now working with Nancy Carroll in "Wayward."

Dorothy Arzner Back In Hollywood

New Dance Hall Film Being Produced

"Dancers in the Dark" has been announced as the release title for the film version of James Ashmore Creelman's story of dance hall romance, tentatively titled "Dance Palace." Miriam Hopkins heads a cast which includes Jack Oakie, Eugene Pallette and Lyda Roberti. David Burton will direct.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Great Care Needed to Avoid Bright's Disease

"Bright's disease" is not a term used to describe a particular disease of the kidneys. Rather it applies to any kidney disorder not accompanied by pus formation.

Dr. Copeland

The function of the kidneys is to remove watery waste from the body. In this task it is assisted by the skin. But whenever the kidneys fail to do their work well, certain poisonous substances remain in the system. They produce unpleasant and sometimes fatal results.

Inflammation of the kidneys may be acute or chronic. It may attack either the kidney structure itself or the fibrous framework of the organ. The acute trouble is common as a complication of a fever like scarlet fever, typhoid, tonsilitis, pneumonia or influenza. Such ailments are particularly liable to develop this condition.

The symptoms are puffiness of the eyelids and swelling of the feet and ankles. The amount of urine is diminished and it appears dark and thick.

It is wise in one of the fevers I have mentioned to restrict the diet to bland foods, to prohibit the use of salt and salty foods. Insist on the drinking of plenty of water. Make certain of protecting the skin from being chilled. The skin and the bowels must act freely to prevent the kidneys from becoming overcharged with waste products. They must do what the kidneys should do.

The use of meat is unwise until the kidneys are entirely normal. Eating meat is not a cause of the disease, but after the kidneys are damaged protein food should be reduced.

"Chronic nephritis" is a form of Bright's disease. It is very stealthy in its approach. It usually develops in persons between the ages of 20 and 40 years. Those who habitually drink alcoholic beverages or suffer from chronic infections, such as malaria and tuberculosis, are commonly the victims.

The symptoms are [illegible] progressive weakness and swelling around the eyes noted chiefly in the early morning.

Early treatment is important because without it serious complications may occur. The treatment is related largely to the personal habits. Protection of the skin from chilling by the wearing of woolen or silk undergarments is advisable. Residence in a warm, dry climate, accompanied by lots of rest, is a valuable aid to recovery. The diet should be simple, omitting meat and salty food. In a severe case a milk diet may be required.

Another form of kidney involvement is common in patients who are sufferers from heart disease, chronic rheumatism, alcoholism or hardening of the arteries. The symptoms include an increase in the amount of urine, high blood pressure, headache and dizziness.

The treatment is directed chiefly to improvement of the general condition. Whenever possible the cause of the disease should be removed. Control of the high blood pressure is best accomplished by a proper diet and the use of certain medicines. Attention should be given the skin and bowels.

Patients with Bright's disease should be under constant care of a physician. Mistakes in diet and neglect to observe hygienic rules may have unfortunate results.

COUNTY BOARD FIRM AGAINST BUILDING TOWN HALL

MEMBERS FIGHT NICOLA SITE PURCHASE

Allegheny County will have no $6,000,000 Town Hall if the new Board of County Commissioners can keep from building it.

The members unanimously voted yesterday to do everything they can to avoid building the much discussed auditorium, and if possible keep from buying the Nicola property in Schenley Farms that two-thirds of the former Board of Commissioners contracted to buy.

At a meeting late yesterday Commissioner C. M. Barr presented a resolution declaring it the sense of the board "never to build a town hall on the site chosen even if the county must buy the property." It was adopted unanimously.

MANSFIELD RAPS DEAL

Commissioner William D. Mansfield also presented a resolution declaring:

"The contract for the purchase of the town hall was improvidently entered into for an excessive price in an unsuitable location and completion of the purchase would be a tremendous waste of the taxpayers' money."

A committee from the Downtown Town Hall Committee, John H. Palmer, A. H. Burchfield and Henry Tranter, said that if the Commissioners insist on joining Palmer in his suit against the Secretary of Internal Affairs attacking the legality of the bond issue for the hall, it may mean that the auditorium cannot be built anywhere. Palmer wants to withdraw his suit, to be heard Wednesday by the Supreme Court. Palmer said:

"If we win this suit it will probably nullify the bond issue."

OFFICIALS PLEASED

The Commissioners greeted this news with smiles. Commissioner Mansfield said:

"I'm in favor of doing everything possible to nullify the bonds."

Commissioner Barr said:

"I'm for intervention and abandonment of the project, particularly when it means that the $6,000,000 can be spent for something the county needs."

Chairman McGovern said:

"It seems that the Commissioners are all against this project. I was against it from the start unless it could have been built for $1,000,000 on the Armory site."

NEW COUNCIL DENIES KLINE IS 'BOSS'

Taxpayers Only Masters, English and Mayor Say As Group Reorganizes

Pittsburgh's new Council was ready to begin business today, hoping for "harmony and confidence" and assuring the public that it knew no bosses except the taxpayers.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and Councilman W. Y. English were on record today as denying subservience to any element except the will of the people.

When four members, re-elected last November, were sworn in yesterday, Kline said:

"I know of no boss of Council. I have never given any orders to Council that were not for the best interests of the city."

Councilman English, preceding Kline, said:

"Council has co-operated with the Mayor, to such an extent that it has been called a controlled Council. I want to deny that."

It was the present majority of Council that refused to investigate alleged irregularities in the Department of Supplies last year, despite clamorings for a public hearing. Later developments resulted in indictment of Kline and Director Bertram L. Succop on charges of malfeasance in office.

President John S. Herron was re-elected for the new term.

New members given oaths of office were Former Councilman P. J. McArdle and Traffic Magistrate William J. Soost. Councilman Robert Garland and Councilman Charles Anderson, also inducted into office, were re-elected.

McArdle cast the only dissenting vote when Former Councilman Robert Alderdice was named Budget Controller at a salary of $5,000. Alderdice's job was created by Council last week as a check on expenditures for 1932. H. S. Breitenstein has been selected as Alderdice's statistician.

Mayor Kline said he expected to announce Soost's successor as Traffic Magistrate today.

'Akron' Worthiness Under Fire in House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—An investigation to determine whether the Navy's new dirigible Akron is a worthy ship and up to specifications will be conducted by the House Naval Committee after it concludes hearings on the Vinson bill. The investigation was proposed today by Representative McClintic (Dem.), of Oklahoma, who said he had received a letter from a worker in the plant "which practically leads a person to believe there was sabotage in her construction."

Hecklers in Council Battle; Officer Hurt

DETROIT, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Efforts to drive hecklers from the council chambers of the suburb of Lincoln Park last night resulted in a fight which led to the arrest of four men. One policeman was injured.

Somerset Hills Yield Counterfeiting Plant

A flood of bogus $10 gold certificates, which has been pouring into the eastern part of the country for weeks, was believed checked, secret service operatives revealed today, with the arrest of a woman alleged "master mind" and her male accomplice.

Joseph Anderson, 28, and his wife, Esther, 29, also known as Esther Bless, are said to have confessed.

William A. Landvoigt, head of the Secret Service force here, and two of his aides, Fred Gruber and John Kettl, went to Confluence today and found the printing paraphernalia where, they said, they told them it would be—buried on a hill four miles from their home.

Many of the bills, Landvoigt said, where passed in Pittsburgh in November. Others were distributed in Uniontown, Johnstown, Washington, Pa., Baltimore and Detroit.

Armed Men Rob East End Grocer

Two armed men held up Nick Giarreisso, grocer, of 555 North Braddock avenue, late last night and escaped with $80, he told police.

CHIEFS OUSTED AS COUNCILS REORGANIZE

Volpes Shorn of Power in Wilmerding; Shakeups Hit Other Borough Forces

Many police chiefs and policemen were jobless today as a result of the reorganization meetings of third class cities, borough Councils and township Commissioners in Allegheny County yesterday.

The wholesale firing of police and employes occurred in municipalities where new councilmen—the Independents—had been elected.

The political power of the Volpe brothers in Wilmerding came to an end when the Independent Council by a vote of 5 to 2 dropped Chief of Police John Corteal, brother-in-law of John Volpe. Patrolman William McKenzie was transferred to the street department. Three other patrolmen, John Zoric, Richard Butler and Capt. Moody Champ, also were dropped from the payroll.

Council appointed Saul Holden, Chief of Police, and named Thomas Conlin, P. J. Costello, Plumer Churchfield and Leonard Locke, patrolmen.

SWEEP IN GLASSPORT

In Glassport, Council ousted the entire police force of six men, including the chief, M. J. Covak. Eleven were appointed, with Dominick George as the new head of the department, but two of the newly appointed patrolmen immediately tendered their resignation when Council informed them their work would be on a part-time basis. The new force will be sworn in January 16.

A surprise to those familiar with politics in Wilkinsburg occurred when the Borough Council named Patrolman James Harris to succeed Wallace Bishop as Chief of Police. Bishop was chief for eight years.

Leonard Kieszek is the new Chief of Police in Coraopolis, having succeeded Joseph Seara, who had held the position for two months.

Swissvale Council appointed Thomas Cummings as head of the borough police, fired four patrolmen and appointed four others. Those appointed were Henry Axion, Joseph Presto, James Harrington and Daniel Webster.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

ABOARD SS. RAWALPINDI, Jan. 5.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There are few prettier sights than steaming out of beautiful Hongkong Harbor. I wanted to go by and set the Philippines free, but, being a friend of Hurley's, we better let Pat keep 'em a while. I am in favor of giving the Philippines their freedom and then having us go under their protectorate. That's the only chance I see of us getting an improvement in the government.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Decree Ends Renaldo Domestic Battles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A final decree divorcing Duncan Renaldo, motion picture actor, from Mrs. Suzette Renaldo, was signed by a Superior Court judge yesterday and ended more than two years of domestic difficulties involving the actor and his wife.

Attorneys announced immigration complaints issued against Renaldo had been withdrawn. Renaldo's attorney also said a warrant charging the actor with child desertion has been withdrawn.

894 Jailed in Year For Non-Support

More than 1,200 new orders were handled by the probation office of Desertion and Non-Support Court during 1931, and 894 men served terms in the workhouse for failure to comply with court orders for support, according to a report submitted yesterday by Robert L. Kinkaid, chief probation officer of the court. A total of $12,276.55, or 65 cents a day, was earned by the men sentenced to the workhouse and was disbursed through Kinkaid's office.

CHIEFS OUSTED IN BOROUGHS

The Independent faction in McKees Rocks attended the Borough Council meeting, which adjourned abruptly after a 10-minute session during which the financial plight of the borough was discussed. The brief session made a record of 27 minutes of meeting in the last three months.

Rigid economy was the demand of Burgess Joseph G. Steedle in his talk on the borough affairs. The borough is owed $114,000 in delinquent taxes and assessments, Steedle said.

SWISSVALE UPSET

Five members of the Swissvale Board of Health were asked to turn in their resignations. It was said they would be succeeded by Dr. L. N. Smith, as President; E. H. Wasmuth, as Secretary; Joseph Wallace, Fred Puesch, J. Mitchell and M. H. Rushworth, health officers. All had served the borough 14 years until their dismissal when a new faction stepped into power in 1928.

The Turtle Creek municipal building was jammed with 900 persons who voiced their support for Howard C. Davis for president of Council. He was elected. The crowd, said to have been the largest that ever attended a meeting in the building, also favored the retention of William J. Whalen and Joseph Sauter as chief of police and captain, respectively.

Police Chief Pat Dolan of Sharpsburg was ousted by the new Council. Sam Fair, former night lieutenant, was named in his place. Three patrolmen were fired and Lieut. R. Billsito was demoted to patrolman. Armel Lazic, a motorcycle patrolman, was elevated to the lieutenancy.

Clairton Council today will vote a 10 per cent wage reduction for all municipal employes, it became known yesterday.

OBITUARY

Hugh P. Tiemann

Hugh P. Tiemann, assistant metallurgical engineer of the Carnegie Steel Company and author of "Iron and Steel," an encyclopedia for steel men, and various technical papers, died yesterday as a result of burns suffered in his King Edward Apartment, November 28. A graduate of Columbia University, he associated with the Carnegie company in 1901 and was stationed in Homestead, later being transferred to the city office.

He was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Homestead; the American Society for Testing Materials, the American Society for Steel Treating, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, British Iron and Steel Institute, American Iron and Steel Institute, Association of American Steel Manufacturers and the Pittsburgh Engineers Society. He was past-master of Crescent Lodge No. 576, F. & A. M.; King of Shiloh Royal Arch Chapter No. 257, a member of Tancred Commandery No. 48, Knights Templar, Pittsburgh Consistory and Syria Temple.

He leaves his widow, Harriett Carroll Tiemann, and three sisters, Mrs. W. A. Howell and the Misses Elsie C. and Edith W. Tiemann, all of New York.

Mill Hand Hurt December 10, Dies

John Malinanek, 52, of 908 Chestnut street, died early today in the Presbyterian Hospital from injuries suffered December 10 when a red-hot iron pierced his stomach in the Labelle Works of the Crucible Steel Company, Reedsdale street, according to a coroner's report.

Oakland Boy, 8, Injured by Auto

Struck by an automobile, Jimmie Yee, 8, of 21 Atwood street, was in Montefiore Hospital today in a serious condition. Police said he was struck by a machine driven by W. K. Gilmore, 27, of 416 Morewood avenue, who was arrested for reckless driving.

CLASH ON BLIND SHOP MACHINES

A protest against installation of machinery in the new workshop for the blind in the former Turner Hall, Craig street, has been filed with the Zoning Board of Appeals by residents of the district and representatives of the Mellon Institute. The board has reserved its decision.

Representatives of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind defended the project, declaring light machinery for broom-making would have no detrimental effect on the neighborhood. The location is in a commercial district and placing of machinery would require a variation from the zoning rule.

H. Randolph Latimer, supervisor of the school, declared the proposed workshop was on a par with other educational institutions of the civic center.

Army Officer Held Suicide, Woman Free

GILROY, Cal., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Gertrude McEnroe, 44, attractive widow of Los Angeles, was at liberty today following a coroner's inquest which returned a verdict of suicide in the death of Lieut. William J. French, 44, United States Army.

Mrs. McEnroe had been held in technical custody. Lieut. French was found with a bullet through his head by the side of his car, which was wrecked when it ran into an oak tree near here.

Yeager, 19th Ward Alderman, Sworn In

Fewer, Less Severe Colds With "Colds-Control" Plan

Discovery By Makers of Vicks VapoRub Makes Possible Better "Control-of-Colds" In the Home.

HIGH COSTS REDUCED

Relief from much of the burden imposed by colds is now available in every home. The Vick Plan for better Control-of-Colds lessens the number, the severity and the duration of colds. It reduces the family's Cold Tax to a minimum loss of time and health.

A New Vick Discovery

This Plan has been perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub—made possible by Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea for "preventing" colds, this new Vick form is a natural companion to VapoRub, the modern way of "treating" colds. Used together, they aid and supplement each other in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" which follows:

1.—Before a Cold Starts.

Watch yourself, whenever you have been exposed to anything that you know is apt to give you a cold, such as—

Contact with others having fresh colds—crowds, stuffy, ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on a Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden change in temperature—inhaling smoke, dust, gases—excesses in living such as over-eating, smoking or drinking, which reduce body resistance—after a hard day when you are over-tired.

Then—if you feel that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once—just a few drops up each nostril. Repeat every hour or so if needed. This will prevent many colds by stopping them before they get beyond the nose and throat — where most colds start.

2.—After a Cold Starts.

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub, now available in white ointment form if you prefer. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the pad in place all night, allowing the body heat to release the medicated vapors which are inhaled all night long.

If the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus, melt some some VapoRub in a bowl of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes. If there is a cough, you will like the new Vick Cough Drop — actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing" which so often upsets digestion, — especially of children.

Trial Offer Guarantee.

Every druggist in the United States is offering Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks VapoRub on the following trial guarantee.

Use together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

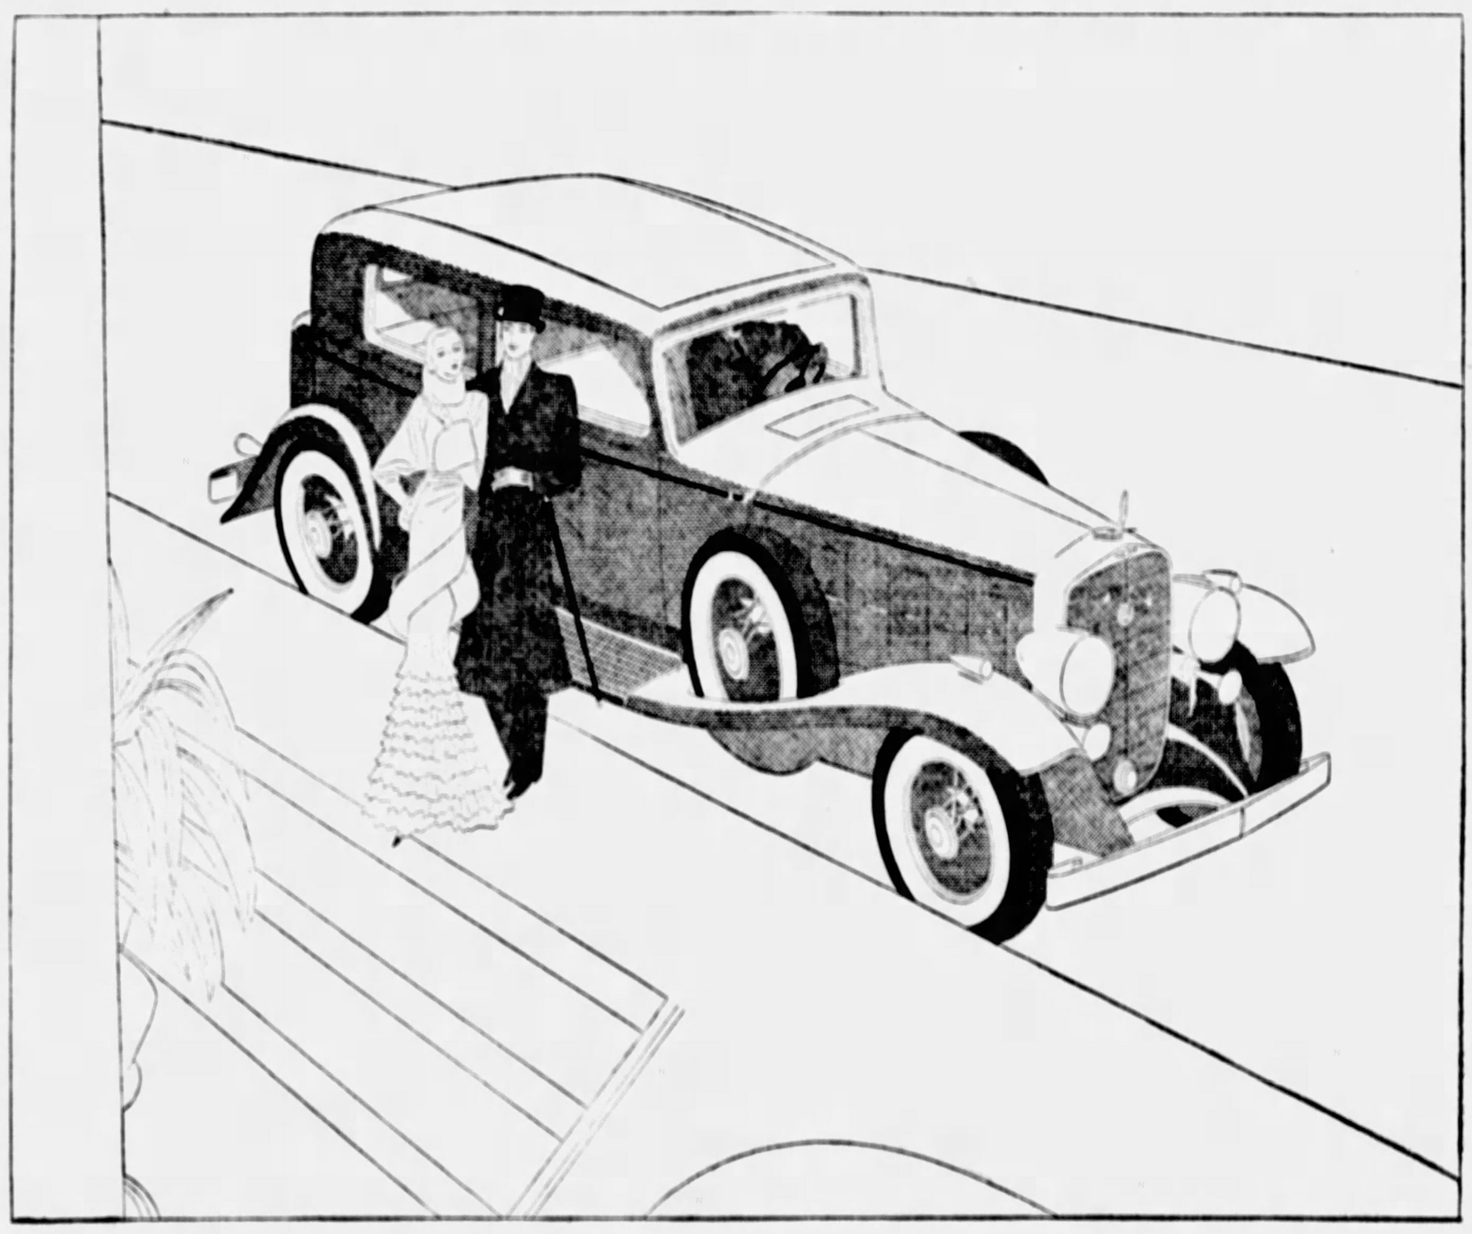
CADILLAC INVITES YOUR INSPECTION OF ITS FOUR DISTINGUISHED NEW CARS



We join with the Cadillac Motor Car Company in extending a cordial invitation to inspect and drive its four distinguished new cars. It is our firm belief that these new Cadillacs and La Salles represent a distinct step forward in the development of land transportation — and, for that reason, we should like to have everyone familiar with what they are and what they do.

Repeated tests have made it plain that their performance has not been duplicated; and the superb comfort and safety they offer are equally without precedent. In fact, the world has had no reason to anticipate cars like these —as a demonstration will most certainly reveal to you.

Come in today for a trial drive. Or, if you prefer, a car and driver will be sent to your home or your office.

WELFARE FUND INADEQUATE TO DEMANDS

January Relief Requests Are Double the Appropriation; Funds Goal Not Reached

Prospect of the Welfare Fund demands exceeding total expenditures was feared at headquarters today as the Family Welfare Association request for January was more than double its appropriation.

Fear was expressed that requests will have to be made to City Council and County Commissioners for appropriations to meet the winter's growing demand for needy cases. With more than $800,000 of campaign gifts made on conditional requirements and the fund's goal not yet reached, headquarters pointed out only $4,661,864 was available for the year. This was to meet the appropriations of seven additional relief agencies beginning this month.

The Family Welfare organization's January request was $98,000, twice the monthly budget average. The relief work carried on by this group increased from 10,000 families November 1 to 13,000 on December 1. No figure was available to January's total, but it was expected to show a marked increase.

The Welfare Fund finance committee was expected to meet during the week to arrange plans that relief work will not be lessened through the new situation.

CRAFTON OPENS CHURCH SCHOOL

The Crafton Community School of Religious Education, of 12 weeks' duration, will open tonight in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Belvedere street, Crafton. Eight classes will be offered.

Instructors will be the Rev. D. E. Culley, of Western Theological Seminary; Mrs. John M. Bailey, county children's division superintendent; Mrs. Sayre Millen, children's division superintendent, District 36, and Mrs. Louise H. Reel, young peoples' instructor, North Boroughs Week-Day Religious Schools. Thirty-five church schools have been invited to attend.

RESCUES MARK MONESSEN FIRE

Four persons were rescued and 21 routed when fire of undetermined origin caused $17,000 damage to a three-story brick building at 459 Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen, owned by M. Bornstein, and occupied by Bornstein's furniture store and apartments, late yesterday.

The rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Irons, George McDuffy, 62, Negro janitor, and Irving Shire, 14, a Boy Scout, who after spreading the alarm, was trapped on the third floor.

The fire started in the basement, according to the janitor, who said he heard an explosion. Most of the damage was in the furniture store. The Monessen Volunteer Fire Department fought the blaze.

Wife Dies After Row, Husband Held

County detectives and the Coroner today are investigating the death of Mrs. Anna Price, Negro, of 511 Beech way, Homestead. The woman died in Homestead Hospital early today from injuries sustained in a fight with her husband Sunday, according to the Coroner. The husband, Charles Price, Negro, is held.

BISHOP UPHOLDS ORDER IN SUIT

Hearing of the injunction suit involving removal of the Rev. Peter Molchany as assistant pastor of St. John's Greek Catholic Cathedral, Homestead, which started yesterday with more than 1,600 members of the congregation thronging courts and corridors, continued today before Judge S. J. Snee in Common Pleas Court.

The Rt. Rev. Basil Takach, Munhall, bishop of the church in the United States, who asked an injunction to restrain Father Molchany from conducting services in the church, testified he had ordered his transfer to be pastor of St. George's Church, Aliquippa, as a disciplinary move, and did not have to give reason. He offered to explain privately to the court his reason.

Father Molchany testified that on December 10 he talked to the bishop and was congratulated on building up the congregation, with no mention that the letter of transfer had been sent. He said he remained at the cathedral at the insistence of the congregation.

DUNLAP SCANS SUPPLY BIDS

Bids on groceries, eggs, butter and meats for Mayview were being tabulated today by Col. W. R. Dunlap, director of the city Department of Supplies. More bids were received than at any time since Dunlap took office, nearly a year ago.

Bids were also opened for brick, coal, sand and gravel, supplies for city laboratories and for diphtheria antitoxin.

Twenty-three firms bid on groceries for the first three months of 1932, eight on meats, six on eggs and cheese, 14 on coal, eight on sand and gravel, six on brick, three on biological sundries, three on antitoxin and 12 on oil and grease.

Can a Girl Love Two Men At the Same Time?

Here's another dear, trusting girl whom men treat wrong. First she loved one gentleman steadily and exclusively for two long years. Then he gave her the air. But in spite of that she "sat back waiting" and "feeling that it would be wrong" to go with anyone else.

Then she met the new man [illegible] fell for him and started a ping around. When at last he well-known song of the [illegible] ger. Number One came back [illegible] anxious to go with her again.

And all through that [illegible] Number Two was dealing with the old Romeo once more.

"I'm all mixed up!" she wails. "What'll I do? Do I love both of them?

LIKED SECOND FELLOW

"Dear Sally:

"Maybe this piece of mine sounds queer, but if I stay in this much longer I'll be queer myself, so I hope you can help me.

"Can a girl love two people at one time?

"I met a man and fell in love with him about two years ago. We went together five months, but after that it was all on-and-on affair, so far as he was concerned. He was the one doing on me, but I thought of him constantly and felt that if I went out with anyone else I would be cheating, so I sat back and waited. My mother was against him and said plenty, but I always stuck up for him.

"Now here's where the trouble comes. About five months ago I met another fellow and I liked him a lot and it no longer seemed wrong to go with another. Well, just about the time I began to get very fond of him this old friend raised up and was terribly ruffled about the matter. So now I am going with him again.

IN MUDDLE

"But I am not sure I care for him. Two months ago I'd have been tickled to death to go with him, and I can't for the world see why I don't feel that way now, but the truth is that I find myself thinking about the new friend all the time when I'm out with the old one.

"And now my mother is all for the old one and I'm afraid to tell her the way I feel. What would you do?

"The new friend knew all about the old one and said he was willing to wait for me to find out how I really felt. I could always depend on him about promises and phone calls, but the old one was unreliable. What shall I do?

"I wonder if any other girl was ever confronted with a problem like this. If so, I would like to know how she got out of it—if she did—without making a fool of herself. Now I feel I [illegible] be willing to forget this [illegible] one and I am sure that I [illegible] him I would go with him [illegible]

DOESN'T LOVE HER

And it's perfectly plain that he doesn't love you. He palliates [illegible] threw you over [illegible] because he was so sure of [illegible] that you had ceased being interesting. Then when he was no longer sure of you, when he saw that you were beginning to get interested in someone else he came back to prove to himself that he was still the big noise in your wishy-washy life, and you let him get away with it. Instead of treating him with the contempt he deserved you took him back.

And the chances are as soon as he feels sold with you again he'll duck out once more just as he did before.

Snap out of it, kid! Stop waiting for people to respect you and be fair to you, and learn how to respect yourself and be fair to yourself. Until you do you'll be everybody's football.

Household Hints

Potato water will remove stains of tea or coffee.

While a fruit stain is still moist cover it with powdered starch. When dry, rinse in cold water and wash in the ordinary way.

To remove candle-grease when spilled on unwashable fabrics place a piece of blotting paper or clean brown paper over the place, then iron over with a fairly hot iron; the paper will absorb the grease.

It is always interesting to discover the thoughts of relaxation of active minds.

The peaceful little sketch of a tiny, lonely cabin I snatched from the hands of a busy editor who sits at the cops desk. In those brief moments of rest between editing the amazing news of the day he makes such delightful little pictures of snug cabins in quiet places.

Some of our great statesmen whose minds are busy with the great world problems of today find relaxation in reading clever detective fiction.

Explorers have taken books of poems with them, forgetting the hazards of the day in an evening of poetry.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel's Contrition Completely Vanquishes Avis Arlen

I could not resist a furtive side glance at Avis Arlen as Noel made his breathless appeal to me. "Must Mary go?" Never in all my life had I seen so crushing a defeat administered to any girl making the determined play for a man which she had made for Noel. I knew that in that moment whatever hurt and humiliation had been Mary's because of Noel's temporary defection had been amply re-edged by the indifference he had shown to the erstwhile charmer of the summer and his utter absorption in herself coupled with his frenzied jealous insistence that she stay away from the Brixton house party.

What would be Avis Arlen's outward reaction to this public flouting? I knew perfectly well what she was feeling—a murderous inclination to take Mary's slender throat between her hands and silence that mocking little voice. But I almost send up my hand in a salute as I saw her face keen its smiling, childlike mask and heard her say sweetly:

Poor Noel! He'll be left with nobody to comfort him but little Avis. We'll just have to go off and cry on each other's shoulders. Come along, No-el.

Was she as game as she appeared? I wondered as she finished, or was she so wrapped in self-conceit that she counted upon being able once more to distract Noel from his allegiance to Mary? Whichever her reaction Noel paid no more attention to her than if she had been a buzzing mosquito which he had not the time to slap; but he kept his eyes fixed upon me, not even seeing the frown with which his father was regarding him.

"Must she go?" he asked again.

"Yes, she must, Noel," I said. "There is no possible way out of it. But it won't be very long, a week at the longest."

"May I remind you, son," his father struck in with elaborate courtesy, "that we are keeping our hostess up and our guests waiting. Better say your adieux quickly and then escort Avis to the car. Au-revoir, Mary! Remember, this is your last outing. You must settle down to work when you come back."

"I'll remember," Mary said with an enigmatic look at him.

Mr. Vertiven looked down at Avis with a paternal smile.

"My son is in a bad humor, I am afraid," he said, "but I am counting on you to get him back to normalcy again. Make him come out to the car at once. I will get your mother."

He walked away, and I shook a metaphorical fist after him. His was that most infuriating of actions, the keeping of the technical part of a pact while breaking the spirit of it. He had promised me upon that memorable last Christmastide that he would restore to Noel his mother's inheritance that he would give Mary back her chance to become a Vertiven star, and that he would voice no further objections to the betrothal of the two.

He had kept his promises so far. Noel had his inheritance, so legally secured that not even his father could again take it away from him. Mary was being regarded by everyone in the Vertiven organization as a future star of unusual brilliance, and as yet he had done nothing openly which could be construed as a reluctance to continue his approval of the betrothal. But I was sure that he deliberately had thrown Avis Arlen into Noel's path and was endeavoring in every possible way to aid her in her flagrant attempt to secure Noel for herself.

Noel had turned back to Mary oblivious to every other person in the room.

"Come out in the hall a minute." His hoarse whisper was audible both to Avis Arlen and to me. I fairly held my breath for a second. Would Mary obey that imperious, loving demand, or would she let her wounded pride dictate a refusal of his passionate desire to kiss her good-bye?

Avis Arlen pretended not to have heard the whisper.

"No-el," she cooed, "did you hear your daddy telling you to bring Avis out to the car? He'll be mad by us if we don't go."

But Noel did not hear her. Mary had nodded and permitted herself to be rushed out of the room into the hall. With the feeling that I was the most feline of all cats, but rejoicing meanly in the sensation, I turned to Avis Arlen with a smile.

"Oh, you must give an engaged couple time to kiss each other goodnight," I said.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Party Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me if it is correct to send written invitations for a birthday party, or should they be printed?

My girl friend had a party and sent printed invitations, but my mother thinks it was not proper to send printed invitations. M

Your mother has the right taste and social judgment about this . . . it would have been better and more appropriate if the invitations had been written, preferably by the girl's mother, the hostess of the home.

A Matter of Strict Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know if it is proper for the father of the groom-to-be to announce the engagement of his son? His parents are celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary, and it seems to me a most appropriate time to announce the engagement. I. G.

No, this should not be done. The parents of the bride-to-be, or someone in her family, make the announcement of the engagement. For the father of the groom-to-be to make this important announcement would be in the worst of form. Anyone would wonder about the family of the bride-to-be, and wonder why they were not doing the thing that it is their social duty to do.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

An opening bid of 2-No Trumps is not preemptive, nor does it demand partner's response, but such a bid strongly invites betterment of the declaration by partner. Be careful about assisting such a bid; many players think that they must support upon a single definite trick, but this is incorrect. An opening bid of 2-No Trumps only announces six probable tricks, with four guarded suits; it trusts partner for two tricks, and it does not invite support upon less than plus two probable tricks.

When the opening bidder has four guarded suits and can count eight definite tricks, or even eight probable tricks, he had better bid 3-No Trumps, unless he has a hand urging a demand bid in some suit. Usually, however, the demand bid shows one bad suit, or 3-No Trumps would be bid at once. As a rule a 4-3-3-3 suit distribution renders an opening bid of 3-No Trumps preferable to a suit demand; the latter suggests not fewer than two suits, each containing at least four cards.

The first three hands below call only for opening bids of 2-No Trumps; the last two hands should be at once bid 3-No Trumps.

♠K109 ♥KJ8 ♣AK52 ♦AJ9

♠A32 ♥A74 ♣A72 ♦AKQ5
♠AK7 ♥AQ ♣KQJ ♦KQJ107
♠A5 ♥A63 ♣A97 ♦AKQJ5

Upon the chance that partner can raise to a slam, make an opening bid of 4-No Trumps, 5-No Trumps, or 6-No Trumps, provided you can lay down your hand for your contract, but not otherwise, losing a certain game for a doubtful slam never pays.

Partner's opening game bid shows that he holds within two tricks of game in his own hand; presumably his cards contain comparatively small defensive strength, with small flexibility, or he would have made an opening demand bid. Suppose that he has made a typical opening bid of 4-Spades, because he has eight setup cards of that suit and no side strength, as in the hand shown below.

♠AKQJ7642 ♥2 ♣A5 ♦75

Suppose that you hold the following hand:

♠85 ♥KQJ5 ♣AK6 ♦9432

Never dream of assisting his 4-Spades; opponents may run off two diamonds and one heart before letting you in. Your hand gives you just two definite tricks that are immediate. But give you the following first trick winners and you are justified in jumping into a grand slam.

♠85 ♥AKQ ♣A534 ♦A632

Beware of assisting an opening game declaration that is unopposed, unless you hold not fewer than three tricks in aces and ace-kings in two suits. Upon three such sure winners you may bid five, to see what your partner does.

Stengel Adds New Shift. • Boom in Boxing Seen.
Old Pirate's Son Cadet. Hough Basketball's Best.

BRISK WINTER FOR COACHING CHANGES

THE SIGNING OF Casey Stengel to act as one of Manager Max Carey's lieutenants and help coach the Brooklyn club this year adds another shift to the longest string of coaching changes the major baseball leagues have seen in any off-season in a long time. At least half of the clubs in the big show will present new faces in that department the coming spring as compared with the coaching personnel of 1931.

Casey Stengel

Stengel goes to Brooklyn to replace Jimmy Johnston and Ivan Olson, Carey planning to do the third-base coaching himself. The Pirates have taken on Grover Hartley to supplant Oscar Stanage. The Giants have dropped George Burns and Chief Bender and will have a new man, possibly Hans Lobert, to pair with Dave Bancroft. Jewel Ens has signed with the Tigers following the release of Roger Bresnahan and Jean Dubuc. Johnny Butler and Bill Cunningham have joined the White Sox while Bernard Kelly passes out, and the Browns went to the expense of buying Allan Sothoron from Louisville in order to get the coach they wanted.

THOUGH LIKELY TO retain Charley O'Leary, the Cubs have dismissed Ray Schalk and expect soon to announce his successor. Cy Perkins may go back to the Yankees in a coaching capacity, and changes on one or two other clubs are not improbable.

In signing with Brooklyn, Stengel, out of the majors since 1926, returns to his first major league love. It was with the Dodgers that he started his big-show career in 1912. The development also means the reunion of Carey and Stengel as club mates, as the two played together in the outfield for Pittsburgh during 1918 and part of 1919.

VETERAN LOCAL BASEBALL fans will readily recall Arthur (Dutch) Meier who served as an infielder for the Pirates in 1906 after starring at Princeton. Dutch's favorite pastime now is bowling—he runs a set of alleys in Chicago—but he has a son who is making a bid for all-around sports honors at West Point.

Cadet Arthur Meier, Jr., 19, stands 6 feet 3 inches and weighs 180 pounds. In his plebe year he played on his class football, baseball, basketball, hockey and golf teams. He did not come out for the football squad last fall but is at present on the Army first team in basketball.

JIMMY LEVEY, Pittsburgh lad who plays shortstop for the St. Louis Browns, was one of the first major league players to sign for the 1932 season. The new contract tendered to Levey evidently was a thoroughly satisfying one, as he lost no time in affixing his signature. Manager Bill Killefer has high hopes for Levey in a batting way this year. Jimmy was handicapped during the greater part of last season and slumped to a low average because he was made to change his stance and choke his bat, but, realizing the mistake, the management let him go back to his natural style toward the finish and he got much better results immediately. This year he will be allowed to hit in his own way, and it is expected he will surpass his best previous clouting figures.

Jimmy Johnston

AS THE HEAVYWEIGHT class goes, so goes the fight game, and it is the opinion of Jimmy Johnston, boxing boss at Madison Square Garden in New York, that 1932 is going to be a big year for the glove sport because there is likely to be a lot of activity among the big fellows.

One big asset for boxing in the new year, he figures, is that the game now has three champions who not only can fight but are willing to fight. He refers to Max Schmeling, who returned to this country from Germany yesterday; Tony Canzoneri and Battling Battalino, calculating that Schmeling will appear in at least two contests, possibly three, and Canzoneri and Battalino in three or four.

"THERE IS NO tonic for any division the equal of a fighting champion," says Johnston. "It should be a wonderful heavyweight year in particular. Schmeling is willing to fight would go over in great style after two years of steaming up.

"Dempsey may get back into action. Carnera has proved he can fight. Schaaf has done great work. Paulino has taken a new lease of life. Walker is mixing in. Poreda looks like a comer. Cobb is a crowd pleaser. Baer has made a strong comeback, and don't forget Loughran or Levinsky, a slashing fighter with a punch."

LOCAL SPORTSMEN MAKE it a point each year to send a good football team to Rochester to oppose the prison eleven in the latter's final game of the season. Last year Sharkey Ridge, an Oakland fan, took the Oakland Community Club to provide the closing feature number. For a while it looked as though there would be a break in the annual custom, following the recent season, but Cup Jenkins, popular Homestead police official, finally sent his club to play the yearly game, with the result that Jenkins' gridders gave the inmates their first defeat in five years by a score of 12 to 2.

ASKED FOR AN opinion as to whether Harry Hough or Nat Holman was the greater basketball player, Johnny Freund gives the award to Hough. "I have been looking at basketball games for 32 years and I have yet to see a player equal to Hough," Freund says. "He was a quadruple threat, a star at dribbling, shooting, passing and foul shooting, the greatest of the great after he first appeared on the South Side with Tamaqua 26 years ago.

"Harry could dribble better than any other man of the past or present. He could shoot from a distance or from under the basket as well as any other player in history. His passing was great and he seldom missed a foul shot when a point was needed.

"AS FOR HOLMAN, he was a great player, too, the best showman the game ever knew, and about as colorful as any that ever graced the courts. Hough weighed only about 135 pounds and had to stand more punishment than any other player in the league, but he seldom was injured. He was what we called a good 40-minute player as well as a ball hawk. I'd say he was more aggressive than Holman, too.

"Recently a well-known eastern critic who played with Hough as far back as 1900 selected Hough and Beckman as all-time forwards, Suits and Dehnert as guards, and Keenan as center, with Wohlfarth, of Homestead, as next best guard, Fogarty as next best forward, Inglis as next best center and Barry as the greatest all-position player."

Biff Jones

THOUGH BIFF JONES himself declines to confirm it, admitting only that the matter has been discussed and refusing to make any further comment, reports from the East persist that one of the new year's earliest additions to the growing list of football coaching changes will see Jones moving away from West Point to accept an appointment as head mentor at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge. Biff says some one is merely taking a blind shot in starting the story, but Bill Corum claims to have inside information that the contract is as good as closed and that Jones will leave the military academy shortly to take up his new duties.

PITT, MINNESOTA TO MEET

CLOSE BATTLE EXPECTED IN CITY LOOP

By JULIUS LEVIN

King Basketball, inactive since the staging of the annual W. P. I. A. L. eliminations and state finals last spring, will stage his first annual court function of the year today when 160 of his subjects, representing the high schools of Western Pennsylvania, usher in their league campaigns.

The City Senior League, composed of two sections, the City Junior League, likewise composed of two sections, and the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, composed of 18 sections, stage their first league contests this afternoon and evening. The City League games will be played in the afternoon, while the majority of the schools enrolled in the W. P. I. A. L. stage their contests at night.

INTEREST HIGH

Keen interest is reported in the ranks of the City Leaguers due to the fact that an open race is predicted in both sections. All schools report fine teams on hand and a close fight is expected in both races.

Each section in the local loop offers a program of three games. Schenley plays at Westinghouse, Connelley at Peabody and Allderdice at South in Section I, while in Section II, Carrick will play at Langley, Allegheny Vocational is the attraction at Oliver and Perry plays at Allegheny.

The City Junior League also offers three games in each of its two sections. In Section I, Baxter opens at Gladstone, Peabody plays at Liberty and Somers at Schenley, Herron Hill plays at Latimer, South at Carrick and Overbrook at Fifth Avenue in Section II.

SCOTT IS IDLE

Due to the withdrawal of Jeannette and Norwin as members of Section VIII, of the W. P. I. A. L., Scott High, defending champion of Pennsylvania, will not see league action tonight. Rankin, Jock Rosenberg's smooth-working machine, playing at Turtle Creek Union, is the only league game on the program. Rankin has been setting a fast pace in pre-season games and is one of the favorites to win the Section VIII title. Turtle Creek Union, under the coaching of Foxy Miller, did not engage in any pre-season contests and little is known about the quality of the valley quintet.

Catholic High opens its season against Clairton High in the local gym, the game being slated to begin at 7:30 p. m.

The opening games scheduled this afternoon and tonight follow:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE FASTEST NEBULA—The discovery of a nebula far out in space, which is rushing away from the earth at the rate of 11,000 miles per second, was made by Dr. Milton L. Humason, of the Carnegie Institution's Observatory at Mount Wilson, Cal. It is estimated that the nebula is 120,000,000 light years away from the earth, or 120,000,000 times the distance that light travels in a year (light travels 186,000 miles per second). FOURTEEN TIMES A WIDOW—Anne Oudette Grappin died at the age of 134 years on January 5, 1811, at the White Peacock in the town of Grez, in the old Province of Franche Compte, France. According to the death certificate signed by the Rev. Francois Brinbur, cure of the Saint Paul Cemetery, Mme. Grappin's last husband was Francois Le Brun, fiscal procurator of the Lords of Beaumont. She had married 14 husbands prior to her last matrimonial venture and had been widowed an equal number of times.

YOST SUPPORTS POP WARNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The contention of Glenn (Pop) Warner, coach of football at Stanford University, that the present hard helmets, knee, hip and shoulder pads worn by football players are responsible for many of the present-day injuries has a supporter in Fielding H. Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan.

Yost is quoted as telling E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, that a survey he made showed that hard hip and leg pads were responsible for every death he investigated.

Warner, in a letter read before the Football Coaches Association meeting here last month, charged that much of the present equipment was designed, not to protect the wearer, but to punish the opposing player. He said just as much protection could be afforded by more yielding and softer pads.

Schmeling Wants Three Fights This Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—"I want to fight three times this year," said Max Schmeling, upon his arrival here yesterday from Germany.

"I'm going on a vaudeville tour for about a week or so. Then I will go at once to Miami and get ready for a fight with Mickey Walker. After that, it's this way: I would like to fight either Dempsey or Sharkey in June and the other one in September."

"That means you think you can win the February and June fights," he was asked.

"Sure," he returned.

Only a few pounds above his normal ring weight, Schmeling was in a gleeful mood as he talked of his prospects. He hopes to make $1,000,000 fighting here before his next visit home to Germany.

Hickey, president of the league, was advised today that bids were being received by the United States District Court at Toledo, and that they would be opened tomorrow.

Vangs, Mill Creek To Battle Saturday

What is expected to be the best polo game of the city indoor season is scheduled for Saturday night when the Vang team, of the local league, meets the Mill Creek Riding Academy, of Youngstown, O., in a return match at Hunt Armory.

Three weeks ago Vang traveled to Youngstown and defeated the Mill Creek riders, 17 to 10.

TIPPIN GIVEN CRUM'S JOB

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Waldo F. Tippin has been named assistant professor of physical education at Allegheny College.

Tippin, who has been football and basketball coach at Meadville High School for some years, will coach both sports at the college.

He succeeds H. W. Crum as mentor of the football team and C. E. Baker as coach of the basketball squad.

Tippin was graduated from Geneva College and Kansas State College. Later he was football coach at Rochester (Pa.) High School. He played end in his football days.

ELKS TO HONOR GRID STARS

Joe and Herman Lamark, of New York University, Kermit (Buck) Ewing, of Carnegie Tech and Ray Anderson, of Pitt, will be honor guests at a testimonial banquet tonight, tendered them by fellow townsmen of Coraopolis in the Elks Club of that place.

Joe Lamark will captain the New York U. eleven next year. Ewing played fullback at Carnegie and Anderson was a reserve tackle at Pitt. Other members of the Pitt and Tech squads have been invited, along with Coach Bob Waddell and Jock Sutherland. The affair will get under way at 6:30 o'clock.

R. GREENLEAF LEADS WOODS

After Woods had won the afternoon block, 135 to 111, in nine innings, Greenleaf came back to win last night's block, 149 to 99, in six innings. He now leads 260 to 234, with 12 more blocks to be played.

A gridiron relationship has been struck between Pitt and Minnesota, one of the elite members of the Big Ten, according to an announcement from the Pitt athletic offices today. The relationship will not take effect until 1933, when the Panthers will tackle the Gophers at Minneapolis on October 21, and then, the year following the Gophs will show here on a date to be set.

Pitt holds a record of two victories against one defeat in previous dueling with Western Conference football foemen. The Panthers have defeated and lost to Ohio State and trimmed Iowa.

It is interesting to note that Pitt adds Minnesota to its football schedule after the Gophers take on Bernie Bierman, who piloted Tulane to a Southern Conference championship this year, as head coach. Bierman becomes head coach at Minnesota next year, succeeding H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, who won fame at Chicago not so many years ago. Bierman's Green Wave went through the past season unbeaten and came close to taking Southern California in the Rose Bowl New Year's afternoon.

DUKES MEET GROVERS

While the Panthers are declaiming and exclaiming over the signing of the Gophers, Duquesne Dukes are fidgeting and squirming as they prepare for their initial collegiate basketball test of the campaign. Tonight at Grove City, Chick Davies puts his disposition and his promising looking varsity on the spot against Boo Thorn's powerful Grove City Crimsons.

Last year the Grovers won both meetings with the Dukes, taking them over here after a hectic battle and winning with somewhat greater ease on their own court. The game here sticks in this great mind for a particular reason.

George Stavinsky, who captains the Grovers this year and plays a guard, was inserted into the ball game in the second half by Bob Thorn, and Big George promptly dumped a pair of long shots that gave the Grovers the lead. Stavinsky never will be classed among the world's greater thinkers. Indeed, he is a very happy-go-lucky lad.

With his team in the lead, Georgia gets into a conversation with Umpire Beggs Snyder, or maybe it was Buck, and the Dukes slip a man past him for a field goal. Whee—!

Did Thorn get him out of there quick? And did Mister Thorn tell him plenty when he reached the bench? I'm asking you.

LINEUPS UNCERTAIN

Coach Davies likely will start the lineup he favored in the Dukes' pre-season games, using Joe MacDougal and either Smith Irwin or Brenner at the forwards, Capt. Bunk McGeever at center and Marty Reiter and Dude Moore at the guards.

Beside checking up on Capt. Stavinsky, the Dukes had better keep watchful peepers on Minnick, Fegley, Laycock, Koma, Deems and Ruckle. The starting lineups—probable selections—follow:

Dukes	Pos.	Grove City
MacDougal	f.	Minnick
Brenner	f.	Fegley
McGeever	c.	Laycock
Moore	g.	Stavinsky

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

Michigan	5—Ontario Aggies	1
St. Mary's Minn.	5—Rowan	1

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 5.—The Windsor Bulldogs and the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets will battle it out for fourth place and a possible hold on the third rung in the International Hockey League standings when they stage their third meeting of the season here tonight.

At present the Bulldogs and Jackets are deadlocked at 17 points each and the deadlock is an honest one in that each team has played the same number of games—17. All other teams in the circuit have played more games than have tonight's rivals.

The season series between the two teams is even at one win apiece. The locals were swamped, 8-0, in Pittsburgh, but the Jackets were downed, 6-1, when they last appeared here.

BOTH LINEUPS CHANGED

Both the Jacket and Bulldog lineups have been changed since the last Pittsburgh-Windsor meeting. Eddie Ouellette, who used to do his skating for the Steel City icemen, now is a fixture at left wing in the locals starting lineup. Doc Romnes, Stu Dunning and Earl Miller are new additions to the visitors' forces.

Miller and Romnes were sent to Pittsburgh by Chicago in exchange for Lou Holmes and Frank Ingram, will be making their first starts against Windsor in Pittsburgh uniforms as will Dunning, star right wing who was traded by Cleveland to the Jackets for Milt Halliday only yesterday.

Charley Reid, coach of the invaders, today said that he planned to use Miller, Dunning and Arbour as his starting front line combination, and that he would use Romnes, Rodden and Barton as his second forward trio. Proudlock, Fields and White will make up the third line.

CLASH HERE THURSDAY

At the finish of tonight's skirmish, the Bulldogs are to accompany the Jackets to Pittsburgh for a game there Thursday night. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh	Pos.	Windsor
Cox	G.	Kerr
Barratt	R. D.	Rochester
Fraser	L. D.	Bruce
Miller	C.	Dugan
Dunning	R. W.	Rodden
T. Arbour	L. W.	Proudlock

NEW RULE ASKED

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS)—Frank J. Calder, president of the National Hockey League, has asked the magnates of the circuit to approve a rule penalizing teams which make a practice of deliberately passing the puck down the ice as a safety move. Calder would have the referee call for a penalty face-off 10 feet in front of the offending team's net after two infractions of the rule.

A. L. to Operate With 10 Umpires

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The American League will operate with a staff of 10 active umpires next season, President William Harridge has announced.

It will be necessary to drop only one arbiter, however, as the league finished the 1931 season with a staff of 11 actives and Umpire-in-Chief Tom Connolly. It has not been decided who will be dropped.

Olympic Prospect Drops School Work

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, 150½ pounds, climaxed the program by scoring a clean-cut knockout over Tug Phillips, of Fayette City, 143½, after 2 minutes 32 seconds of the fifth round, nailing his man with a left hook to the jaw as the latter rushed him to the ropes and dropping him on his face for the count.

The bout was Randall's all of the way. He hit Phillips with everything but the ring posts and the bell saved Tug in the second round, when an uppercut dropped him to his knees, clutching at the Tiger's body as the round ended. The battle was too one-sided to be interesting.

CUT EYE ENDS BOUT

A badly cut left eye made Joey Thomas, of Chicago, a technical knockout victim of Charles Baxter, of Pittsburgh, in the fourth round of the scheduled six-round semi-final. It was the best bout of the night while it lasted, with Baxter doing the harder hitting and Thomas the more clever boxing. Both were guilty of a lot of low punching in the hard exchanges. Suddenly, in the fourth round, Baxter wheeled about in a clinch and ripped his arm across Thomas' face, opening cuts over and below the eye and the wounds soon became so serious that there was nothing for the referee to do but to call a halt. Thomas weighed 131 pounds and Baxter 136.

Danny Delmont, of Chicago, 137, was too strong and too hard a body puncher for Eddie Branson, local Negro, 139, and dealt him a bad beating in six rounds.

HOLT BEATS GROVE

Billy Holt, Negro, of Homewood, 146, came from behind to stand Daisy Grove, of the North Side, 144½, the latter's first defeat in a local ring in their six-rounder, and Jackie Wilson, East End Negro, 122¾, turned in a good win in taking the referee's decision over the highly-touted Ross Fields, Weirton (W. Va.) southpaw, 121, in six rounds, while in the four-round opener Tod Murphy, of McKeesport, 164, and Walter Ketchel, of Pittsburgh, 167½, slugged to a referee's draw.

TONY PIET

PIET IN 'PINK' VISITS HERE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

"I feel I'm right in the pink now, and I will be one tickled fellow when I get out there on that Paso Robles ball lot."

VISITS RELATIVES HERE

Anthony came to Pittsburgh from his Chicago home to visit with relatives. The lad who made such a positive impression on his Forbes Field debut last summer gave voice to the above utterance as he sat for a picture. And the healthy Polish youth looked the part.

Piet seems to realize that he has not clinched the keystone job by any means. Native Son Howard Groskloss, provided his bad leg responds, will give the fair-haired Pole a run for the berth, and George Grantham still remains on the Pittsburgh roster.

Groskloss jumped into major league circles without going through the conventional minor league school. Howdie, therefore, is under a handicap, yet he is natural in his fielding stride, and his poise at the plate is so pronounced he may force his way into a regular job. In any event it would not be well to leave Groskloss out of your second base conclusions.

HAS POWER AND SPEED

Piet, nevertheless, has a marked blending of those two qualities which raise a thrill in the breasts of any major league manager—power and speed. The well-set lad from the Chicago sandlots looked like one of the best baserunners in the sport after making his Pirate debut. He had enough consistency at the plate to bat better than .300 and his bat has a lot of punch. Moreover, Tony is blessed with an excellent throwing arm, which will stand in his stead in many ways, not the least of which is the skill necessary to double plays.

Daily Double Pays $1,773 at Jefferson

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—(INS)—The daily double bet at Jefferson Park paid $1,773 for a $2 ticket yesterday. Only one was sold. The winning horses of the second and third races, which races make up the combination, were Jeff O'Neil, which paid $55.80 for a $2 straight ticket, and Our Chief, which paid $27.20.

JAP SKATERS ARRIVE

A KAWAGUCHI, Jan. 5.—(AP)—A party of Japanese speed skaters arrived at Lake Placid, N. Y., to enter the winter sports events here last night aboard the Japanese liner Hikawa Maru. Nine skaters with managers and officials made up the party. They leave for the Lake tomorrow.

SOX GROUNDKEEPER DIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP)—William R. Murphy, 62, superintendent of Pro-Player Park, home grounds of the Boston Red Sox, died here last night. He had been in poor health two years. Murphy had been associated with Robert Quinn, president of the Boston club, since 1909.

SOCCER FIELD, NET COURTS PLANNED

By TOM BIRKS

Plans for the new soccer stadium, tennis courts and a bowling green at South Park, which will be presented in the near future to the Allegheny County Commissioners, yesterday were shown to members of the Western Pennsylvania Soccer Football Association newspapermen and soccer fans, at the invitation of Director of Parks Paul B. Ris.

The soccer field, if the Commissioners sanction it, will be one of the finest in the United States. The location is near the Totem Pole section, and is a natural three-sided amphitheater. Bleachers to take care of 5,000 fans can be built. A good drainage system will guarantee fine playing even in poor weather.

NINE TENNIS COURTS

Nine tennis courts are planned, and a bowling green will attract many former old-country bowlers who have not had a chance to display their skill at this game since coming here.

The entire sports program is embodied in one set of plans to be given to the commissioners. It hardly will be possible for the stadium to be ready for next fall, as Director Ris pointed out the new grass would not be ready for hard wear at that time.

With 30,000 fans following soccer each week in Western Pennsylvania, the action of Director Ris is highly appreciated. St. Louis has Forest and Sportsman's parks, Cleveland has Slavia Park, Luna Park and a big municipal list of fields, Detroit has Packard Park, Bell Isle and Solvay Park, while Pittsburgh without question is the greatest soccer territory in the United States, there has not been a venue in the city open for soccer, and the new field at South Park, if it is provided, will be a God-send.

MAY BRING BACK CROWDS

Pittsburghers then may be drawn with Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis and Cincinnati teams, and take their followers to South Park without their feelings being hurt.

A crowd of 15,000 watched Heidelberg put the Cleveland Magyars out of the National Cup, and with a stadium dedicated to soccer, these crowds are likely to come back again.

BILL TILDEN, RICHARDS COP

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Bill Tilden, now the peerless professional, gave a dazzling exhibition in defeating the Irish champion, Albert Burke, 6-3, 6-2, last night in the feature match on a professional tennis program sponsored by Promoter Jack Curley.

The opening match saw Vincent Richards mow down the veteran Francis Hunter, 6-3, 6-4. Richards and Tilden are scheduled to meet tomorrow night, after which the troupe will depart for an extended tour of the country.

Tilden teamed with Hunter in doubles to defeat Richards and Bob Seller, 6-3, 12-10. It was the night's best exhibition, studded with brilliant rallies.

Waynesburg High Gives Up Football

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—Decision to abandon football at Waynesburg High School next fall was made here last night by the Borough School Board, members of which stated that the action was made necessary by a deficit of almost $500 shown in the sport at the end of the season last year.

The action came as a surprise to Waynesburg residents inasmuch as contemplated action on the matter had failed to take place when scheduled to several weeks ago. At that time unofficial reports said the sport would be abandoned because of refusal of several students to co-operate with school officials in recovering football equipment stolen from the high school building at the end of the season.

JOCKEY ADAMS SIGNED

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Jockey Albert J. Adams, who set a world record by piloting nine consecutive winners during the 1930 race meet at Marlboro, has been signed by Mrs. Robert H. Hecht, owner of the Prospect Hill Stud in Harford County, near Bel Air.

PITT TOSSERS TO BE BACK TOMORROW

By J. H. Carlson

Pitt Basketball Coach.
Written Exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 5.—Like the youth's circle of ideas and friends widens until maturity and then narrows again to fewer specialized ideas—home and family—

Dr. H. C. Carlson

so we have traveled this trip seeing wonderful new country, meeting fine people and making new conquests, but all that has gone serves only to emphasize appreciation of our friends, homes and school.

The trip has been a great success, but, in addition, we have found that the fundamentals of greatness are the same everywhere. From a basketball viewpoint, we have learned a lot and have enhanced the prestige of Pitt.

Had we won every game, we would be a super-team, which is not exactly the whole truth.

Now we are in the healthy state of being willing to strive to become better, all in the face of our tradition that the games lost might have been won with greater coaching brains and the games won were a reflection of the great work of all the boys, and I think they are great, through and through.

I can see only good from such an expedition, and become more than ever a champion of athletics in spite of the paid hecklers who over-emphasize weak points.

Those letters home have been a pleasant diversion to me, but to my critics, I admit I knew all the time I couldn't write.

However, I have felt that the efforts might create a little contact between the boys and home, hence my willingness to self expose. In spite of which, we continue to eat breakfast in New Mexico, lunch in Texas, dinner in Oklahoma, as well as the crossing of 12 other states in this trip, and always longing for Pennsylvania. Tomorrow we'll be with you again. Au revoir!

MORAN SPORTS STAR

The sudden death of P. E. (Happy) Moran, former city detective in an auto accident Sunday, took from the ranks of athletics a former amateur baseball and indoor basketball star. Moran formerly played with the P. J. Torrence Company and S. J. Grant diamond teams and with the Brentwood W. P. League and Troutman quintets.

RUGGIRELLO WINS

VON ELM TEAM COPS TOURNEY

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—George Von Elm, runner-up for the national open title, and Stanley Turner, both of Los Angeles, won the Santa Monica $2,500 amateur-professional golf championship yesterday, shooting a best-ball score of 66, 5 under par.

Ten teams tied for second place, a stroke behind the winners, after 18 holes of play in the face of a stiff wind. Von Elm's prize money was $300 and Turner won the amateur trophy.

Behind the 10 teams tied for second place were six others tied for twelfth with 68s and 13 more tied for eighteenth with scores of 69, so close was the competition.

DADO TROUNCES AL BROWN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Al Brown's western invasion has been anything but a success. The lanky Panamanian Negro, who holds the world bantamweight championship, last night dropped his second boxing match within a few weeks. Speedy Dado, of the Philippines, soundly trouncing him in a 10-round bout. The title was not at stake.

In his first start here Brown lost a decision to Newsboy Brown, local boxer.

Dado showed plenty of speed last night. There were several spirited mix-ups and the Filipino dominated at virtually all times. Dado was given nine rounds and Brown one. Dado weighed 118½ pounds, while the champion's weight was 120½. Jack Dempsey was the referee.

DECEMBER CAR SHIPMENTS

DETROIT, Jan. 5.—Automotive manufacturers today saw definite indications that the American public is beginning a new automobile buying drive. Several of the industry's foremost firms reported sharp increases in December production.

Buick Motor Company produced and shipped 11,629 cars in December, against 9,053 in November and 4,092 in December, 1930.

Reo Motor Car Company shipped 692 cars and trucks in December compared with 73" in November and 1,337 in December, 1930. During the year 1931, Reo shipped 14,021 cars and trucks.

Studebaker Corporation and subsidiaries December sales totaled 6,237 units, of which 5,109 were Studebakers, 385 Pierce-Arrows, and 743 Rocknes, an increase of 50 per cent over December, 1929, and 100 per cent over December, 1930, A. R. Erskine, president, states.

U. S. BANKS GET CREDIT CALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The first call of the National Credit Corporation upon member banks throughout the country for the payment of 10 per cent of their subscriptions to the corporation's $500,000,000 debentures was announced yesterday.

The amount of the call, which is to be paid next Thursday, is estimated at around $50,000,000. Part of the funds are to be used in making loans to sound banks whose collateral is not quite eligible at the Federal Reserve banks.

Besides providing loans for the banks that may be temporarily in need, the initial call of the corporation will enable it to refund loans to large banks in various localities which it has negotiated without ordinary collateral.

Identity of individual banks to which aid has been extended is not made public by the corporation, nor is the total of the amounts loaned.

Business

Production and Prices To Be Most Important Indications of Future

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NEWS DEVELOPMENTS DURING the coming three months are likely to be unfavorable. This will be due to the fact that most industrial corporations will be publishing their annual reports, which will reflect the unsatisfactory state of conditions during 1931. These discouraging figures will be the main influences in additional announcements of further dividend reductions and omissions.

But the really important news developments will be less obvious. They will be found in the trend of industrial production and in the movement of commodity prices. These, not the earnings statements and dividend actions to be taken by boards of directors, will be the truly significant developments of the first quarter of the new year.

An increase in production almost invariably takes place during January and February. The mere fact that there is an increase will not be news. The extent of the increase will be the important factor. An increase in commodity prices hardly can be expected in the next few months. Many economists believe that business recovery will take place without any general advance in prices. But the absence of any important declines may be taken as an indication that the process of deflation has run its course.

Indication of Gains Seen In Production

THE TREND OF PRODUCTION will be the most important barometer of the business future in the coming year. Gains must not merely reflect seasonal trends. They must exceed normal seasonal variations in order to give a real indication. Early in 1931 false hopes were built upon an improvement in activity which was only normal in its proportions. The extent of gains in January and February must be compared with movements in the corresponding periods of previous years in order to make logical forecasts of the future.

The trend of commodity prices was downward during 1931. In the final months, however, prices showed a greater degree of stability than in the early part of the year. If this stability increases, the way to recovery may be indicated. In judging the future from the standpoint of production and commodity prices, undue weight should not be given to events in any particular industry. It will be recalled that the recovery of 1922 took place in spite of continued depression in textiles and a few other types of activity.

Steel Mill Output Starts to Increase

STEEL MILL OPERATIONS have increased slightly since the beginning of the new year. Officials of the leading companies state that it is too soon to estimate the extent of expected business. Most of the important consuming industries are uncertain about their future prospects and are waiting for the booking of new business before placing orders for steel.

The coming automobile shows in New York and other cities will give an indication of the future of one of the largest steel consuming industries and of the public reception of their new models. This also will reflect the sentiment on the future of many other types of business.

Automobile production offers the steel industry its most immediate chance for an increase in sales. The other two large consumers of steel, railroads and building, are likely to be slower in recovering. The railroads must experience a sharp revival in the volume of traffic before they can become large buyers of rails or equipment. The building industry must wait until the demoralized state of real estate values has been corrected.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Loew's Inc., for 12 weeks ended November 20 reported net profits of $1,895,467, against $2,667,021 in the corresponding period of 1930, according to a report issued by Davis Bernstein, vice president and treasurer. Bernstein said that the heaviest decline took place in the first six weeks of the fiscal year, or from September 1 to October 15, 1931. From then until the end of the first quarter business improved materially and is currently equal to a year ago.

Glidden Company and subsidiaries report for year ended October 31, 1931, net profit of $201,360 after interest, depreciation, but before subsidiary preferred dividends, equal after deducting $29,130 subsidiary preferred dividends to $2.49 a share (par $10) on 99,960 shares of 7 per cent prior preference stock of Glidden Company. In the preceding year the company reported net profit of only $11,365, equal to $2.27 per share on 5,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock of the company's subsidiary, the Metal Refining Company.

Lee Rubber and Tire Corporation reports for year ended October 31 net loss of $825,100 after expenses, depreciation, interest, inventory adjustment, etc., compared with loss of $799,111 in the previous fiscal year.

Coal Output Falls During Holidays

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Production of bituminous coal showed sharp curtailment during the week ended December 26, partly as a result of the Christmas holidays.

The output for comparable periods, as measured by the Mines Bureau, follows: Week ended December 26, 5,400,000 tons; previous week, 7,056,000 tons; same week last year, 6,980,000 tons.

ON THE MANAGEMENT

OF TRUST INVESTMENTS

ONE of the most important duties of a Trustee is to establish a sound and conservative policy with respect to management of the funds held. The provisions of the Trust determine at all times, however, the action that can be taken in this respect.

It has come to our attention that individuals who have created Trusts and those interested as beneficiaries often do not clearly understand certain vital facts relating to such matters.

We have, therefore, prepared a booklet in an endeavor to explain the duties of a Trustee and the usual provisions relating to the management of Trust Investments. We shall be glad to forward this booklet to you upon request.

Would a Rest Aid Our Sick Stock Market?

By B. C. FORBES

LAST YEAR practically all were quite cheerful. They proved wrong. New Year predictions this time are overwhelmingly pessimistic. We hope they prove wrong.

Mr. Forbes

CERTAINLY THE first two months of the year tend to offer [illegible] securities [illegible] surely low [illegible]

It is a [illegible] Each [illegible] ing-out [illegible] bond and stock [illegible] originally [illegible] 300 per cent [illegible] 300 per cent [illegible] out running [illegible]

THE MANAGER of [illegible] ness concern writes:

"Every morning several hundred thousand people anxiously glance over the stock market. The constant dropping of stocks has a depressing effect on them. If the Stock Exchange were closed 30 or 60 days this depressing influence would cease and in my opinion it would help to lift the depression.

"Then there are a great many corporations holding tremendous cash reserves — more than necessary under the conditions. If these concerns would distribute some of this cash it would help to create a better feeling."

"No doubt what happens in Wall street has a very potent effect upon industry, business and employment throughout the land. I stopped looking at the stock market quotations and reports a month ago, yet I find I am able to exist and be happier without this.

"Don't you honestly think that if the Stock Exchange were shut up for six months the whole country would recover much faster?"

A RECENT column describing the difficulties which have beset so many banks, especially country banks, has brought many letters of commendation and elucidation. Extracts from one:

"The people should realize that banks generally have never been so liquid as they were when the present depression struck us. I know some banks that paid out as much as 86 per cent of their deposits, a remarkable record, and then had to close—and then were painted by the people of their community as failures or worse, and the word has gone around that the bank closed because of 'frozen assets.'

"It is hard for the people in a community to realize that a local bank is just as good as the people who are doing business with it.

"Too little is said of the many directors and bank officials who after years of hard work in accumulating a fortune, have voluntarily dumped all their assets into their institution to save it. The list of unsung heroes among bank directors in the last few years is very large indeed, but about the only ones who reach the public are those who have been guilty of crookedness."

"You have been most helpful to me in my capacity as a country banker. I think those of us who strove heroically to keep things going on an even keel will some day learn that our efforts have been appreciated. We must carry on under conditions that would quickly send city bankers into sanitariums.

"I am quite sure your article will be widely read and every country bank will be benefited by it."

MARKET DROPS IN MODERATE SELLING

Majority of Leaders Sag Only Fractionally; Few Decline 2 to 3 Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The familiar bogey of dividend shrinkage once more reared its head in the stock market today.

Despite the fact that recent prices have generally been regarded as discounting further dividend cuts, reductions by such companies as American Smelting and Santa Fe Railroad brought fresh recessions. Suspension of Gurnett & Co., a prominent New England brokerage house, had little effect on the market, save in a few issues in which the firm was interested.

Santa Fe dropped more than 4 points, and American Smelting more than 3. On the whole, however, selling was in moderate volume, any many of the leaders sagged only fractionally. Among the few issues losing 2 to 3 points were American Telephone, Coca Cola, Union Pacific, First National Stores and Electric Autolite. Waldorf System, in which the New England firm was said to have been particularly interested, broke about 6 points, then recovered slightly. Ludlum Steel also dropped rather sharply.

Santa Fe's reduction of the quarterly dividend to $1.50 from $2.50 was perhaps a little more drastic than had been expected in some quarters. Wall street forecasts of the new dividend had ranged from $2 to $1.50. Amerng's cut from 37½ cents to 12½ cents appeared also to have been somewhat sharper than had been expected in some quarters. Another important dividend due for action this week is that of Westinghouse Electric. On the basis of recent dividends, the stock is currently selling to yield more than 10 per cent, which may be regarded as indicating doubt over maintenance of the $2.50 annual rate.

The progress of the bill in Congress creating the reconstruction finance corporation is being watched with keen interest in Wall street, where the measure is much favored. It is felt that this corporation would prove much more effective in restoring public confidence than the national credit corporation. Financial leaders point to the annual bank statements now being published as clear evidence of the need of restoring confidence. While the high degree of liquidity shown by leading banks may prove a balm to depositors' nerves, the fact that banks felt that they should maintain such liquidity impairs their service to commerce.

ATCHISON ON $6 BASIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The Atchison, Topeka-Santa Fe Railway declared a dividend of $1.50 on the common stock, payable March 1 to record of January 29.

This places the stock on a $6 annual basis, as against $10 heretofore.

Recent unofficial estimates of Santa Fe's 1931 earnings place the balance for the common stock at about $10 a share. In the last few months, however, the road's revenues have fallen off further. In 1930 Santa Fe earned $12.86 a share as compared with $22.69 a share in 1929.

Lycoming Doubles Foundry Schedule

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 5.—Officials of the Lycoming Manufacturing Company, a division of the Cord Corporation, today announced an immediate increase of 100 per cent in foundry production to meet requirements necessitated by the volume of orders for passenger car, aircraft and truck engines now on hand.

Foundry pourings will be stepped up to 150 tons daily within five days. Pourings since December 1 have averaged 75 tons daily.

Goodyear Reports Change in Directors

AKRON, O., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company today announced the resignation of three directors, James T. Begg, Cleveland; H. W. O'Melveny, Los Angeles, and Lord Hugh Trenchard, head of London's Scotland Yard.

Receiver Asked for U. S. Rolls Royce

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Application for an equity receivership for Rolls Royce Company of America, Inc., has been filed in Federal District Court by Mark S. Hurewitz, a bondholder. The complaint alleges the company is solvent but without liquid assets with which to continue business.

DIVIDEND NEWS

Associated Dry Goods Omits.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation has omitted the quarterly dividends on the common stock due at this time. Three months ago a payment of 25 cents was made. The quarterly $1.75 on first preferred and $1.75 dividends on the second preferred stocks were declared, payable March 1 to record of February 11.

Sheffield Cuts Rate.

American Smelting and Refining Company declared a dividend of 12½ cents on the common stock, payable February 1 to record of January 15. Three months ago 37½ cents was paid.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Lack of interest in the bond market today caused prices to continue their sagging trend. Investors apparently were standing on the side lines waiting for something to turn up.

OIL PRODUCTION DROPS AGAIN

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Another large reduction in crude oil production of the United States was reported today in the Oil and Gas Journal's weekly table, which indicated a drop of 87,597 barrels in the daily average.

Total production for the week ended January 2 was fixed at 2,201,111 barrels a day, as compared with 2,288,690 barrels daily the preceding week.

There has been a drop each week since that ended December 5, when production of 2,451,201 barrels daily caused such consternation among operators that a voluntary Sunday closing plan was adopted.

CITY WED

By FAITH BALDWIN

Olive Suggests to Bill That He Divorce Nevis and Marry Her

CHAPTER XV

Bill surveyed their guest with delight. He said, monotonously: "Well, this is swell. Talk about a sight for sore eyes! Golly . . . Westlynne in person! Nevis has been home, you know, but I haven't, and you're the first real breath of civilization I've had since we came to this God-benighted country."

He babbled on, taken completely by surprise and reacting naturally to the situation a strange country, an emaciated life and then suddenly an old friend, a symbol of happier and easier and more sophisticated days. He glanced at Nevis. Nevis must be thinking him silly to have Olive here, he thought. Then he remembered. It was as if that part of his mind had been swept blank for months. Olive on first sight represented no more to him than a name, a person and home. The part she had played in his emotions, the rupture she had caused, the surreptitious and furtive love-making in which he had once been involved, these things he had all but forgotten.

They had dinner. They went walking. They dropped in to see the Hayes. Olive and Linda measured each other with a cool and all-observant glance. Linda thought she's very good looking, and Olive thought I don't wonder she's taken for B.L.

That night Olive lay in the small guest-room bed and looked up at the dim, white folds of the netting. She had come to Porto Rico deliberately. She had become more involved with Howell Moore than she had wished to be. She was fond of him, had been, until his ardent surrender to her, a little more than fond of him, perhaps. He had been the first man she'd met who had interested her since Bill Lancaster's abrupt departure from New York. She had therefore permitted herself to be caught on the rebound, yet hadn't lost her head, not by any means her heart. Still Moore was patently mad about her and so had served his purpose as a general anaesthetic. Now, absurdly, he wanted to marry her.

DETERMINED TO SEE BILL

Well, why not? He was an actor and a very good one and a really great career had been promised him. That had its glamour. He tinkered at plays also, was double talented and exceedingly good looking and ardent into the bargain. He came of fine stock, his father was a Supreme Court Justice, and Moore had been educated at Leland Stanford. He had everything but money and Olive had plenty of that. He moved, moreover, in a circle which interested her very much, theatrical people, playwrights, novelists . . . She would have an entertaining time married to Howell Moore; they could have a studio apartment somewhere, smart, and she might even establish a salon. And aside from his jealousy, which she thought cynically, time would eradicate, he was very easy to handle. And it was time she married. People were beginning to talk; there had been so many rumored engagements, none of them had come to anything. And she was perhaps getting a little reckless. Yes, it was time she married. But . . .

She hadn't forgotten Bill Lancaster. Perhaps because she had never succeeded in possessing him, perhaps because Nevis had taken him away, almost thought Olive, so coming down to Porto Rico she had determined to see him. Perhaps it would cure her, perhaps not. Time enough to give her answer to Moore, taking back to San Juan with the others after she had seen Bill.

Perhaps if she saw Bill she would wonder why she had ever loved him.

Love, of course, is not the word. But it will serve. She always used it anyway.

Seeing him, she decided, living there, her head touching, hadn't helped. He was more attractive to her than ever. Some of the boyishness had gone, but there was a hard-as-steel muscle in his shoulders, a place which drew her strongly. She thought he'd all but forgotten.

VISIONS A DIVORCE

Nevis, she decided, had practically lost her looks, or at any rate her vitality. Nevis wouldn't prove the rival she had once proved. She thought however wives always have the advantage . . . most men are so stupidly loyal, so afraid of public opinion.

Bill Lancaster had been an idiot to refuse the position she could have procured for him with her father. Perhaps he wouldn't refuse it now. She found herself wondering if after all she still wanted an illicit relationship with him. How much more simple if Nevis could be persuaded to a Reno divorce. Why not? If it was money Nevis wanted, well Olive would arrange that. And she would have her father settle half a million on Bill upon their marriage.

He was the only man she had ever wanted, over a long period of time.

Bill, in his own bedroom said with an effort at adversland nonchalance:

"What do you know about Olive barging in, out of the blue?" he added. "She's changed some, hasn't she?"

Nevis said:

"Not basically, I guess. If you mean her manner, well she has. But I understand no one role ever lasts with her long."

"Women," remarked Bill, grinning, always with the knife out." He stopped again remembering. He cursed himself silently for 18 kinds of a fool.

Bill put his arm around her. "You sure are a good sport, Infant," he said—and then, in guilty haste: "I mean that is to say, you're pretty tired and all fed up with this place and having to have someone here who will take entertaining and waiting on is just another one of those things."

But the days slip by and she wasn't all right. They had a dinner party of Nevis' and another at the Hayes' and the dance which Nevis had promised their guest. And Bill go off five and then to drive Olive around a bit in a company car.

"I won't go along, if you don't mind," said Nevis, offering sarcastically from the veranda. "I've got a lot to do."

She had her gowns to press and refurbish and she had to help Maria, who was amiable but probably had hookworm, she was so bone lazy with all the extra work. Olive left a lot of picking up to be done after her. She also wore daily several changes of fine cool linen and would wander out to Nevis, a troubled fold between her brows. "Could I get these washed? Isn't too much trouble?" "Oh, no," Nevis would answer lightly, "no trouble at all," and would wash the things herself if Maria seemed unable to make the effort, and not only lingerie but stockings and handkerchiefs, and there was pressing to be done and a strap to be sewed on here and a snapper there. And so it went. Olive said: "I should have brought Ellen, but we didn't have room for more than one maid on the yacht and Fan brought hers, an awfully competent French woman."

She thought a little scornfully: "Nevis can't care much. Not any more, anyway. She plays pretty well into my hands. Or is she too stupid to know it? She didn't use to be stupid."

Nevis did know it. She did care. But she was too tired to interfere. She thought her little dark face haggard. I can't fight back. I've nothing with which to fight. Home I could and did, although not as hard as I might have done. I see that now. I was a little too sure of myself. I might have used her own weapons and didn't. Of course, I did as far as Harry Carter was concerned. But I certainly couldn't have gone through with that. It isn't in me. I'm a quitter, I guess. But I'm done for. I haven't the energy, I haven't any more the looks. If we were home. But we aren't. If she has come down here after Bill and, I think she has, I won't interfere. I won't try to argue with him. I won't even protect him from himself. It isn't that I don't care. It's because I care too much. If he wants Olive and all she stands for, it's up to him. He'll have to make his own choice.

She closed her eyes against the stinging tears. She thought, I do love you so much, Bill. Not any more than I did. Coming away hasn't made me love you any more. I've loved you this way all the time.

Olive was saying much the same sort of thing at that moment. Bill had driven her to where, near the sea, in a perfect jungle of undergrowth, there was an old deserted house, something of a curiosity and a show place. It had been the hacienda of a very rich man at one time. It was not forlorn and desolate, falling to pieces, but still a perfect example of old Spanish architecture which a Spanish gentleman, nostalgic for his own country, confused in this newer land, affronted by patios and hybrid faces and tumble-down shacks, had erected to the glory of Spain. Bill and Olive walked through the echoing, crumbling stone patios and courts, alive with the bright glancing of lizards, and stood together on the flat roof looking off to the peacock-colored waters, through a tangle of trees and fern and growth.

Olive remarked:

"Oh, Bill, must you—be this way . . . ?"

"What way?" he asked, not looking at her, but staring out to sea, hatless, now that the heat had abated, his thick blond hair stirred by the cool sea wind, standing there tall and slim and somehow vital as the slender palms.

She asked:

"Have you forgotten everything? I told you before that I loved you. I still love you. I can't get over it. I've tried, you don't know how I've tried." She thought, turning to look at him with that new effective frankness, that it was just as well he didn't know the means she had employed; never would know, if she had any power to prevent it.

"Look here," said Bill seriously, "you don't mean that."

"I do. I came down here just to see you; to be with you; to see if you still remembered; to beg you to come back where you belong. Bill, you are wasted here. You'll ruin your health, you'll squander the best years of your life. Why did you run away from me?" she asked.

He said, awkwardly:

"I didn't run away from you, Olive. Nevis wanted to make a change. The market was shot to hell, you know that. I had to get something to do—"

"Don't quibble. I offered you a position which would have paid you a great deal more than this one and would have kept you at home," she said.

"I've got a good chance with Walter Mason—Nevis' uncle—if I learn the business here. A chance, I mean, in New York. I've made up my mind to take it."

She cried out wildly:

"You can't tell me you're happy here! It's this place. And with Nevis . . . If you tell me so, you're lying. What has Nevis to offer you that I haven't?" She stretched out her arms, consciously dramatic, but perfectly effective—she said. "I've youth and looks and I love you. I've beauty—Oh, I'm not ashamed to say it, why shouldn't I know it . . . ? I'd work with you and for you . . . You'd get to the very top with me, Bill."

He said, somberly, hands sunk in his pockets:

"Just what are you suggesting to me, Olive?"

She said:

"You know. I want you. I've wanted you for a long time. I thought I'd be content with an affair—a quick flame that would burn out and scorch neither of us, and all managed so that Nevis need never know, need never be hurt by it. Well, you—wouldn't. God knows why. But I find that such a half-measure wouldn't content me now. Bill, I've a lot of money, I'll have a lot more some day. We'd have everything in the world—youth and love and work and money——"

She stopped, out of breath. He asked, looking at her as if he had never seen her before.

"And Nevis? What would Nevis have?"

"A settlement. With what?"

"Bill, please don't be stupid or wilful! My father will settle half a million dollars on the man I marry. As far as I am concerned, you can turn it all over to Nevis."

He remarked, and looked away from her:

"No price is too high." She stopped. She said, low: "How you hate me!" She caught her hand to her mouth and took a step backward.

His hand was hard and tight. She shivered a little. She swayed toward him, but he released her. She said, sombrely: "I might as well."

Bill said, with hearty manly contempt:

"Don't be a little fool! Walking off roofs won't get you anywhere. Look here, Olive, you're all wrong about this. I don't hate you. I like you, a lot." He frowned, trying to explain. "back home you—well, I fell for you, all right. You were different from anyone I had ever known. And everyone, in that gang, almost everyone, that is, appeared to have a flirtation or two on the side. It didn't mean anything. I mean—parked cars—and a kiss now and then."

She asked furiously: "Why don't you be utterly vulgar and talk about necking?" That's what you really mean. Shop-girl stuff. Or maybe collegiate stuff. You never did get over being an undergraduate, did you, Bill? Well, I suppose that's all it meant to you——"

SUN-TELEGRAPH

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Here we are in the middle of the first week after vacation and most of us have forgotten about Christmas. It was hard work to get back to lessons again, but now we're in the swing of it, we rather like it.

The next holiday we have to look forward to is Washington's Birthday, February 22. There will be a special celebration this year because it will mark the 200th anniversary of the birth of this great character. Every school will have special exercises and almost every child will take part in some way.

The Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club chapters holding meetings in 17 Warner neighborhood theaters will have their own celebrations. In some cases they will be staged in connection with the school programs.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At every chapter where officers had served their four weeks' term, new officers were elected at Saturday's meeting. At the Manor, the following members will serve for the coming four weeks: P. Mazerov, grand jester; board of governors, C. Becker, B. Mazer, G. Seiwald, H. Campbell and Jean Miller.

Manor Chapter is forunate in having a fine orchestra comprised of seven boys, under the leadership of Frank Rauccl. They entertained at the Junior Komic Club meeting Saturday morning and played for several little singers and dancers who appeared on the stage.

AMBRIDGE CHAPTER

The Prince (Ambridge) Chapter opened Saturday morning with a dancing school class under the direction of Mann's School of Dancing. The meeting was then turned over to little Ellen Llewellyn, chairman of the entertainment committee. Members who contributed to the entertainment were Winifred Barclay, Myrna Herbering, Marie Simon and others.

Tom Ficco and Tony Weaver were the chief entertainers at the Grand (Greensburg) Chapter meeting. Prizes for contests were won by Rose Medved and Bennett Glantz. Members of the club were much interested in the talk of the chief of police of Greensburg, who told how they could protect themselves and others on the busy streets.

Elba Harris Chapter takes the banner this week for adult attendance at the meeting. About 150 sat in the rear rows of the theater and watched the fun Saturday.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

South Hills—Bud Sailer.

Davis—Ben Goltman, Victor Roberts, Margaret O'Toole.

Plaza—John Legler, Billy Petemezas.

Rowland (Wilkinsburg)—Louise Pitts, Francis Shaw.

Manor—Jack Goldstein, John Baxter, Paul Reilly.

Grand (Greensburg)—Caroline Ritchie, John Buscaglio.

Cameraphone—Charles Pringle.

Kenyon—Esther Hoffman, Ruth LaLouge.

Housecleaning Starts

The County Commissioners Have Done Well in Ordering An Audit.

The new County Commissioners took office yesterday with Col. Charles C. McGovern as chairman of the board. They immediately ordered an audit of the county's financial affairs and appropriated $25,000 to pay for it.

This is in fulfillment of a campaign promise and will be welcomed by the public.

Some serious charges were made by Commissioners McGovern and Barr last autumn. It was alleged, for example, that the payroll books that were supposed to be signed by employes on receiving their money, were "a mass of fraud and forgery." "Whole pages," Barr said in one of his speeches, "showed the outgo of tens of thousands of dollars, page after page, on different signatures, all in the same handwriting by the same man."

If the situation was as bad as was charged, the audit should furnish evidence for presentation to the grand jury.

Do Not Abandon It

Even Though the Proposed Site Be Unsatisfactory, the Town Hall Project Should Not Be Dropped.

The new County Commissioners have let it be known that they do not favor the purchase of the Nicola site in Oakland for the Town Hall.

It is to be hoped this does not mean they intend to abandon the project.

The voters indicated by a large majority that they desired a Town Hall, and nothing has occurred since the bond election which warrants the assumption that they have changed their minds.

Since the auditorium is to be paid for by a bond issue, the expense to be met by taxation during the next year or two will be very small.

This would be an exceptionally good time to build the Town Hall because building materials are low in price and labor is plentiful. Construction of the hall would be a contribution towards unemployment relief.

Unable to entertain the largest conventions, Pittsburgh needs a large auditorium badly.

Miners' Union Gains

Progress Made by the United Mine Workers During the Past Year Is Worth Noting.

The soft coal industry, it was said a few months ago, was so flat on its back that it could scarcely make a movement that would not improve its position.

That was true not only of the operators but of the United Mine Workers, the organization which once included in its membership most of the miners in the Pittsburgh District and had wage contracts with nearly all the large producers.

A review of the past year by Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, shows that some progress has been made by the United Mine Workers towards recovery of their former position. He reports that the union now has wage contracts with the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, Western Pennsylvania's second largest commercial producer; the Creighton Fuel Company and several smaller operations.

The strengthening of the United Mine Workers means a lessening of the influence of the Communist element that has been so active among the miners in recent years, and so is to be welcomed.

Wage contracts are needed to stabilize the industry, and the fact that a number of local operators have entered into such agreements is encouraging.

Father Cox's Army

Whatever the Outcome of the March on Washington May Be, the Purpose Is Commendable.

Somewhat in imitation of the march of "Gen." Jacob Coxey's army of the unemployed to Washington in 1893 the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, is leading a caravan of jobless men from Pittsburgh to the Nation's capital.

Opinions will differ as to the wisdom of the procedure. We hope it will not be a futile gesture.

Whatever the outcome may be, the purpose behind it is commendable. Father Cox seeks through a dramatic demonstration to focus the attention of the national authorities, including Congress, on the plight of the unemployed—to attract their attention so strongly that they will do something really effective to improve conditions.

A Threat to Mussels

At a dinner given by the Wild Life League in Pittsburgh several years ago, Dr. William J. Holland, director emeritus of Carnegie Museum, told of standing as a young man on the Point Bridge and of seeing many large sturgeons resting on the bottom of the river.

He proceeded then to review the fish and other creatures once abundant in our rivers which during his lifetime have utterly disappeared because of stream pollution. One of the animals that he mentioned was the fresh-water mussel.

His remarks are recalled by a report just issued by the United States Bureau of Fisheries that mussels are now being exterminated in the lower part of the Ohio River, and also in the Mississippi and Tennessee. Stream pollution and deposits of silt are killing them.

This is not a matter to be taken lightly, for fresh-water mussels supply our pearl buttons, and the mussel fisheries of the Ohio, Mississippi and Tennessee constitute a $7,000,000 industry.

A New Calendar

By Nelson Harding

Here's a calendar for this year,
One to hang where all can see it
Through the year that is beginning
With its twelve clear months before us.

Nineteen thirty-one was lacking
In the qualities selected
For a calendar reminding
Us of things too oft forgotten.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—This second-hand but from authoritative source, is the spookiest of all the wierd tales to which I have listened in the big town. It was told by a doctor late to a dinner party and was an excuse to the host for tardiness.

His last patient of the day was a strikingly beautiful lady. After conversational sparring she wanted to know if it were possible for one to be innoculated with a germ that would result in death in a year. She had funds to carry on that long.

It was her preference that the innoculation result in a malady that might be cured in case, for any reason, she changed her mind. She had thought of pernicious anaemia. The doctor, something of a psychiatrist, knew the only hope was to find cause for such a mental state.

By skillful questioning he learned suicide was constantly on her mind but she always balked at the last moment. She thought she wanted to die but was not quite sure. Hence the request for the innoculation of a lingering ailment that might be cured, if there was a change of heart.

The reason for the suicide was brought out slowly—so slowly the interview was prolonged four hours. The woman two years ago gave birth to a baby illegitimately. For three months the infant thrived then suddenly went into a decline and passed away.

The undertaker was called, the body embalmed. In the middle of a sleepless night, the mother arose and went into the next room to see the baby in its coffin. As she bent over, she was horrified to see a bubble on the lips and a flutter of eyelids.

According to her story the baby was revived and lived eight hours. It was, of course, the query of listeners. How could one live after "being embalmed?" The truth is—which was just as shocking—there are several authenticated cases. Sometimes it was faulty embalming but usually it was among morphine addicts.

They were discussing sly humor of other days in contrast to sprightly wise cracking of the present. Someone recalled the opening sentence in a Mark Twain speech at the Brevoort. Looking out benignly at banquet guests he intoned: "When I look around at the poor old human race, I sometimes think it might have been a good thing if Noah and his family missed the boat."

There was that time Bill Nye and James Whitcomb Riley arrived after a fatiguing journey at the leading hotel in Frankfort, Ky., on a joint lecture engagement. At the desk, they found the clerk, the poke-collared type with the middle-haired-part of the day, engrossed tete-tete with a charming girl. The humorists, still holding their bags, waited patiently for minutes. Finally Nye, in his strangely querulous whine, said: "Excuse me, young sir, but your face reminds me oddly of Clay." The flattered youth cooed: "You mean our great Henry Clay?" Nye shook his head and drawled indifferently: "No. Just clay."

Out in my crotch of an Ohio creek a prize story concerned the ancient enmity between the old war horse, Senator Foraker, and William J. Bryan. Bryan was hailed as The Boy Orator of the Platte. Foraker liked the title. "The Platte River, I understand, is two inches deep at its source and five miles wide at its mouth," he said.

When Uncle Joe Cannon was making his first political race, he began his opening speech with: "They could go farther and do worse and they probably will do both."

Nor do I think the modern crop of simile makers can touch Eugene Field. He was speaking of a friend's simile: "He stood out like a bone felon on formal, in full dress." Afterward Field, in telling friends, similed: "He stood out like a bone felon on the hired girl's thumb."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I wonder if death would dismay us as much if we didn't think of it as a religious process—something that only God can solve.

Easy enough, of course, to see how that idea began. Everything was a mystery to primitive man. Lightning, thunder, earthquake, pestilence—all these were black magic. Even birth was a mystery. Aborigines still do not realize that babies are the result of human mating. They believe they are the work of jungle spirits who cast a spell upon unprotected women.

Death was the greatest mystery of all. No one could explain it, not even the medicine men. But the medicine men, holding savages in control by mumbo-jumbo were much too smart to confess that there was anything that they could not explain; so they put death, along with the other mysteries, beyond the need of explanation. They made all mysteries "taboo," declaring that it was sacrilige, punishable by torture, to pry into such matters.

So death came under the control of the medicine-men—became a purely religious matter, not to be investigated by the secular mind.

But no taboo or torture was ever invented that could permanently bind the will and imagination of man. So certain men, braver than their fellows, insisted on questioning, insisted on imagining that there must be a normal solution for mysteries, insisted on daring to find the solution—AND FOUND IT!

THEY FOUND IT BECAUSE THEY DARED TO IMAGINE THAT IT COULD BE FOUND.

So one by one the grim taboos have gone down. We no longer think that man's mysterious pains and handicaps are the "will of God." We now believe that it is God's will that man should know everything, have everything, which can make his life more free and abundant.

We have broken through our jungle. We have conquered time and space with the radio, the aeroplane, the telephone, the wireless. Our whole modern world operates by electricity, although we still do not understand its nature. We avoid the pestilence by killing rats, preventing mosquitoes. And mothers, who once suffered agony in childbirth because such was held to be "the curse of Eve," now take ether.

Only the death taboo still holds us in its grip. The grave alone balks the scientific mind.

We are no longer afraid of the "ghosts" in the storm cloud. We no longer tremble before the anger of a God who decrees that millions shall die by the plague. We know that such notions were born of fear and ignorance.

BUT WE STILL FEAR THE GHOST IN MAN. WE STILL TREMBLE BEFORE THE SHADOW THAT LIES ACROSS THE TOMB.

Supose we dared to imagine that man is not a ghost but an immortal, progressing spirit, no more mysterious or terrible when he operates without a body than when he operates within one?

Suppose we dared to imagine that death is just another one of those changes with which life is filled; that the grave is just another one of those stations that life builds by the road.

Suppose we DARED to IMAGINE that life went on, normally, naturally, regardless of vicisitudes or changes.

DO YOU SUPPOSE WE WOULD FIND THAT IT DID?

Choose Your Exit

It's time to buy the crepe and lilies for love, when a man stops coaxing a girl to kiss him and begins permitting her to kiss him.

* * *

Many a man's first wife has saved enough money by doing her own housework and cutting out the beauty parlor, to enable him to buy pearls and orchids for her younger and prettier successor.

The practice of "petting" is merely a result of the low rate of present-day intelligence. When a man starts right in to get slushy, it is either because he is too stupid to think of anything else, or because the girl is such a dumbbell that she wouldn't understand anything else.

* * *

The "best man" at a wedding (from his own point of view) is the one who just narrowly escaped being the bridegroom.

* * *

Men will always make foolish blunders in choosing a wife, so long as the women they enjoy going out with are so often the kind that they'd hate to come home to.

* * *

Most women who have everything they want in life seem to have so many things that they DON'T want—including avoirdupos, nerves, dull husbands, indigestion and divorce scandals.

A pessimist is a man who lives in the eternal suspicion that every woman is trying to catch him. An optimist is one who thinks that no woman can catch him. A fatalist is one who knows that some day, SOME woman will catch him—and cheerfully resigns himself to the inevitable.

* * *

Lots of intelligent modern women still believe in a personal devil—because they have a secret conviction that they married him.

The Gentle Art of 'Soaking' the Poor

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Some time ago in these columns, discussing the plight of the miners in Harden County, Kentucky, we reviewed the story of the murderous and traitorous assaults on the human rights of the miners of West Virginia 20 years ago. Now, with the report of the commission named by the Governor of Kentucky to investigate the savagery in Harden County, the analogy is complete. We told how mine guards, recruited from among the criminal classes of large cities and furnished with implements of death and an abundance of whisky, were prone to descend upon the cabins of the miners in their absence and terrorize their families and steal the little they had left in their cupboards. We related the story of the assassination of an Italian woman, who, with child, was kicked in the stomach by the head of the private army—a loathsome crime that was never prosecuted.

The mine guards, or private army, still tolerated by American civilization, to the disgrace of our people, have been making raids on the miners' cabins in Harden County. Twelve to 15 men, frequently sodden drunk, and brutal, have surrounded the cabins containing terrorized women and children and then swooped down upon the house, using abusive language to the cowering women, ransacking the cabin. "They spit and staggered and cursed," is the testimony.

Bread and Work Weapons Against Communism

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has given out a statement to the effect that Communism is not making headway among the American unemployed. That, to a large degree, we believe to be true. He says that "education" is the best bulwark against subversive doctrines, and that is true, with some reservations. It is not true that we "can face the future with equanimity," as he says, if vast armies of men are to be out of work and refused the right to work for years. Education is effective when men have food, but education, without bread, and without the right to work to get it, will not hold men to any governmental theory for long. Bread and work in America are the most effective protection against subversive doctrines.

If the millions in America have not been alienated from our system it is because charitable individuals and local communities have been sympathetic and decent; but in the case of these miners in Harden County, where organized society under our governmental forms stands aloof and indifferent while drunken ruffians, armed with guns, terrorize women and blackjack men, it is inevitable that these victims will turn against the government. That is human nature. There isn't a man on Wall street, who, subjected with his wife and children to such brutality, would not turn savage tomorrow.

Hoover Administration Hypocritical

The Hoover administration has always been hypocritical in its talk about recessing politics and cooperation. Imagine Ogden Mills recessing politics! When two Democratic leaders in the House expressed individual opinions on the tax question, Mr. Mills sallied forth with an attack upon the "Democrat party," charging it with a disposition to "soak the rich." New York newspapers played it up with the evident expectation that the people would arise en masse against the idea of "soaking the rich." Unhappily, with billions of deficit in the Treasury, under the direction of Mr. Mills and the policies of the administration, all the taxpayers in the country are apt to be soaked. The rich cannot escape. It may seem to Mr. Mills the "American way" to "soak the poor," but they have their inning at the polls if they have the gumption to assert themselves.

But the Democratic tax plan has not been determined upon and Mr. Mills knew it. There was a misinterpretation of the meaning of Mr. Rainey's statement, which he has corrected. But the best policy for the Democratic leaders is to refrain from interviews until the plans are complete, and then to submit their comments, after consultation, and in typewritten form, so there can be no misinterpretation.

* * *

Mills and Mellon Are Rich Men

The weakness of Mr. Mills' statement is in the fact that Mr. Mills, of the Treasury, is put in the light of speaking up for Mr. Mills, the taxpayer. He is a very rich man, and, naturally, does not relish the idea of the rich being "soaked." So is Mr. Mellon. It would have been more intelligent strategy to have had the Mills statement given out by some member of his party who would not personally be involved in a policy of "soaking the rich."

All of which goes back to the former prejudice of the American people against placing the Treasury in the keeping of men of enormous wealth. It may be possible for a man of enormous wealth in the Treasury to put his personal interest aside in determining on where the taxes shall fall and who shall be "soaked," but it must be difficult.

Men of financial genius in the public field have made great secretaries of the Treasury though possessed of small means themselves. Hamilton was poor. Gallatin, his peer, was only well-to-do. Crawford, whose management of the Treasury met the approval of American business, was without large means. Few of the heads of the Treasury have been very rich men. These could have said what Mr. Mills said with better effect on the average mind.

Let No Child Starve, Should Be Policy

One of the federal government's innumerable bureaus has issued a folder for the instruction of American families, in dire distress, on what to eat and how much to pay. It is interesting to learn that one of the bureaus has discovered the women and children who are without enough to eat or wear; and has concluded that there is grave danger that many thousands of children who escape actual starvation may emerge from these days of privation ruined in health.

The federal government is sure that a family of three can live on from $5 to $7 a week and the child have the milk it needs and the other food containing iron. It sets forth a budget for the family: 25 cents for milk, 20 cents for vegetables, 20 cents for bread and cereals, 20 cents for fats and sugars and 15 cents for cheese, eggs, meats. There are many families these days, not yet on charity, that are existing on less than this and these will read Ogden Mills' feeling protest against "soaking the rich" with mingled feelings.

One thing is certain: if it is necessary to go to the federal treasury for what is needed to bridge the difference between what private charity and the smaller governmental units have raised and what is needed to prevent the starvation of women and children, it is going to be the "American way" to see that no child starves. Or a few million Americans with hearts will know the reason why.

The trouble with the administration is that it has been too free with advice and not free enough with help.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you married into the family there were some hasty, unkind words exchanged or possibly conditions after marriage brought about ill-feeling.

But what is the use of perpetuating the disagreement?

Often the quarrel is due to the position taken by the parents of one or the other.

After the ceremony has been performed it is the duty of both his and her parents to be as agreeable as possible for the sake of the young couple who should have a fair chance of happiness and might if others kept out of it.
